EDITORIAL BRIEFS.

SCRUBWOMEN reformers should be kept out of office.

THE Democrats have quit abusing Blaine as their time is taken up to defend Cleveland.

MR. HENDRICKS says he thinks he will be elected. Well, it doesn't cost anything to think so.

THERE are two things a thoughtful man can't well stand on, a banana peel and the Democratic platform.

SOLON CHASE, the Maine Greenback leader, has come out for Blaine. He couldn't help it. He was magnetized.

THE bankers at Saratoga are drinking plenty of Congress water and passing their resolutions in ease and comfort.

IT is a singular coincidence that the bills vetoed by Governor Cleveland on the grounds of unconstitutionality were all bills against monopolists and favorable to the poor.

REMEMBER that Democrats, if placed in power in Washington, might, and probably would, make as bad a record as the Pennsylvania Democrats have during their brief lease of power.

AGAIN the cry comes from the Western border for more women. This is met by the cry from the East for more men. Why not establish a sort of matrimonial clearing-house and stop both cries?

THE nomination of Cleveland caused the earthquake. He is so weighed down with vetoes and bad character that he will Cleve the land entirely open next time and the Democratic party will be swallowed in the depths of the yawning abyss.

OFFICIAL reports from the agricultural department indicate that the extreme figures of the crop guessers must be reduced. The department's estimate of the wheat yield is now 485,000,000 bushels. This is 65,000,000 bushels below the highest figures, but it is a big crop.

BUTLER seems to be running himself as the laboring man's candidate The working men who want the product of their industry protected, however, against cheap foreign labor, are running Mr. Blaine. In politics there is a vast difference between running oneself as a candidate, and being run as a candidate.

THE Watchman publishes the result of a vote taken on a train between Harrisburg and Sunbury, which gives Cleveland ten more votes than Blaine. But Pennsylvania is not a very favorable State for the Democracy, on which to try the train-vote test. Her 40,000 Republican majority makes mockery of that amusement.

The Republican Ticket.

The proceedings of the Republican county convention on Thursday have been published and the ticket placed in nomination will be found at the usual place in this paper where it will remain until November, when we hope and have reason to believe it will be triumphantly elected. Compared with the ticket nominated by the Democrats two days previous it is absolutely brilliant, the list of names to be voted for far outstripping in all elements of superiority the corresponding list on the Democratic county ticket.

The President Judge must of course be ratified by the Judicial Conference, but there is little or no doubt that A. O. Furst, Esq., Centre County's nominee, will be the choice of the district. There is no more able lawyer in either Centre or Huntingdon counties than he and if selected by the district conference he will be triumphantly elected.

John G. Love, Esq., was also a candidate for President Judge, but he took his defeat very gracefully and accepted the nomination for assembly,and in connection with Mr. Wm. M. Allison, the ticket for Assembly is perhaps the strongest that has ever been nominated by either party in this county. Mr. James P. Coburn paid a deserved tribute to Mr. Love during the county convention and we believe that in November next the people will unite in giving him the tribute of their votes. He will make a wonderfully wise and brilliant legislator and it is not too much to predict his election. The name of William M. Allison is familiar to everyone in the county in connection with its business interests and social life. He is universally respected and will secure a large vote.

One of the most extensive business men in the county, Bernard Lauth, Esq., of Howard, is the candidate for Associate Judge. We believe that each varying and contending interest and faction in Centre county will be pleased with this nomination and elevate Mr. Lauth to the bench. He is a man of culture and experience as well as business acumen.

No name on the ticket gives occasion for more wide spread comment of approval than that of H. G. Royer, a prominent citizen of Wolf's Store, who has received the nomination for Sheriff. Honest, able and true, Mr. Royer lives in a part of the county where Republicans are not numerous, but his devotion to the cause of the party of great moral principles is steadfast and true and will tend to the benefit of his neighbors, who best know his character and will give him their support.

In Horace G. Elder, who is a young man of promise and ability, the citizens of Centre county have a man in whom they can trust and who will elevate the office of Prothonotary which in recent years seems to have been filled by men of questionable methods and character. This department of the county affairs might be put in the hands of a representative Republican, for a change, and we ask every voter to consider well the claims of Mr. Elder upon their support at the ballot box.

The nomination of Lewis Hess, of Philipsburg, is another tribute to high business qualifications and ability. The nomination of Wm. F. Foster for Register can hardly be too highly praised.

Mr. H. F. Chaney, the candidate for recorder, is a resident of Worth township. But when we allude to him as "a man of worth," it does not apply alone to the township in which he lives, but is indicative also of his character and excellence.

One of the candidates for commissioner, Mr. Campbell, needs no enconiums. He has been tried and found abundantly competent, and Mr. Henderson's name in connection with his will add measureably to the success of Republicanism in his section the approaching fall.

The Republican candidates for county auditors possess exactly the qualifications which their duties require and a vote for th m will be a vote creditably cast.

The work of the convention was most fittingly completed by the selection of John P. Harris for chairman and the adoption of a strong series of resolutions.

Vote the Republican County, State and National ticket.

Thoughts on Local Politics.

There is no Democrat, perhaps, in this congressional district who is the equal of Governor Curtin as a Congression candidate; therefore, he must be the district candidate. But there is abundance of as good material among the Republicans of this town. There's A. O. Furst, Esq., Edmund Blanchard, Esq., and Gen. Jas. A. Beaver. If Republicans want an acceptable and strong candidate they have not far to look in search of one.

The Republican candidate for President Judge in the 49th district, who was selected Wednesday, will receive a majority of about 500. Huntingdon county will give a majority of 1200 this year and Centre county's Democratic majority will be reduced to about 700. Either Brooks' or Greenlief's Arithmetic will enable you to estimate the answer—500.

Mr. John A. Woodward, the first and chief choice of the Democracy for Assembly, is personally quite a brave man and intellectually excellent. He is not very popular, however, and we doubt if his candidacy will be enthusiastically received. Mr. Rhone, the other candidate, is influential in the the organization of the Patrons of Husbandry, but there are many even in that society who do not admire him. He is a man of great determination, which by those who oppose him, is denominated stubbornness. His actions in reference to the State College have been quite inexplicable, and about every newspaper in Centre county on record in approval of the present management of that institution of learning, must oppose Leonard's course in this regard. Then Mr. Rhone is generally considered to be entirely overrated, intellectually.

In many other counties it is considered no enormous offense to nominate a man three terms for the same office, but undoubtedly it was the third term bugaboo that defeated that prince of good fellows, Cal. Harper, for Prothonotary. We don't know Mr. R. G. Brett, but are assured that he is another "hail fellow well met" like Mr. Harper, and his best friends believe that he will be much better off by continuing to reside in the country and deplore his prospective removal to town. A rural life is considered best suited to Bob.

It would be difficult to find an altogether more agreeable individual than Miles Walker, who is contemplating the pleasing prospect of becoming master of the stone mansion on the hill. But who ever heard of Walker running for office? Besides, Walker isn't married, and what will he do in such a big house? If he has the faintest idea of making a good fight for that office he should look out for a sheriffess at once, and then he may have the votes of the men supplemented by the moral support of the ladies.

IT seems to be the curse of American journalism that it will persist in giving such conspicuous importance to the slightest rumor if it be of a sensational sort. The latest and most horrible tale affected the character of Lieut. Greely and his crew, of the famous Arctic expedition. It accuses them, in their dire distress of indulging in cannibalism to sustain life, and that, too, on the flesh of their comrades who had perished. We refuse to credit one item of the scandalous tale, and consider it extremely ungrateful to have published it.

THE Democratic organs beat all the other papers in printing the Cleveland scandal, and seem bound to keep up their record in printing the falsehoods about Mr. Blaine.

Cleveland and the Fugitive.

Turning from the private to the public conduct of Governor Cleveland, says the Pittsburg Commercial, a case has just been made public which presents the Democratic candidate for the Presidency in a very unenviable light. One James Cosgrove, of Washington county, Iowa, had been charged with the crime of seduction under very aggravated circumstances, and fled to Ithaca, New York. Governor Sherman, of Iowa, issued his requisition on the Governor of New York, and placed it in the hands of the Sheriff of Washington county, Iowa, for execution.

All that is required in such cases, is that the requisition shall be in due form, when the Governor to whom it is addressed is in duty bound to "deliver up" the fugitive criminal. Governor Cleveland, however, instead of complying with the request of his brother Executive, gave some very flimsy excuses why he should disregard his duty. He held for instance, that there had been "delay in presenting the application," and that "it did not appear whether the criminal was a resident of New York or only transiently there."

The main fact in the case,and the only material fact, was that Cosgrove was a fugitive from justice from Iowa, and had been found in New York. Governor Sherman, indignant at the refusal of Governor Cleveland to discharge a duty so plainly required of him, made a new demand, accompanied by an argument and citations of judicial decisions which opened the eyes of the New Yorker. He was pointedly shown wherein he had violated the laws of the State, which he had sworn to faithfully execute.

An honest, conscientious man, finding himself mistaken, would have promptly rectified his error by doing everything in his power to have the fugitive apprehended. But Governor Cleveland did not so act. He seemed determined that this particular seducer should not be returned to justice, and although he reconsidered his previous action and issued the proper warrant,he refused to place it in the hands of the Iowa Sheriff, but gave it to a New York official to serve. Through this criminal connivance the Iowa fugitive escaped. This, taken in connection with numerous other public acts of Governor Cleveland, is not calculated to inspire the highest confidence in his fitness for the Presidency. There is an adage that may throw some light on the special favor shown the Iowa seducer: "A fellow feeling makes one wondrous kind."

"SAVE me from my friends" is a prayer Cleveland may well make with great fervor. If the New York Star of Wednesday is to be believed, Mrs. Halpin has been solicited by his friends to disavow the story of her treatment by Cleveland, and upon her refusal was smuggled away from New Rochelle and hidden in New York. Meantime, what to do with her, was for five hours the topic of discussion in the Executive Committee of the Democratic National Committee on Monday. The trouble is caused by the failure of an attempt to induce her to denounce the story of the Buffalo Telegraph as false, which the committee says she must do. Much better for Cleveland that they should say nothing.

"WHAT's all this talk I hear about Stephen Grover Cleveland?" asked Mr. Tilden of his private secretary, as the latter tied his bib under the old man's chin preparatory to taking breakfast. The secretary for answer handed Mr. Tilden a copy of the Buffalo Telegraph, containing "A Terrible Tale." Glancing over the article from beginning to end the cipher statesman laid the paper down and his off eye twinkled as he said: "Ho, ho! Woman scrape, eh? Well, they never caught your Uncle Samuel that way!" and he chuckled as he reached for the oat meal.

The Irish Revolt.

The greatest anomaly of the present canvass is the revolt of a large numbers of Irish voters who have heretofore been identified with the Democratic party. The movement is acknowledged on all hands as remarkable—so strange, indeed, that many are at a loss to account for it, and because of its strangeness the Democratic leaders rashly conclude that there is nothing substantial in it.

A new light has filled the eyes of many intelligent Irishmen. They now see the folly of giving point and emphasis to this remark of an Englishman: "An Irishmen is of no use to us until he emigrates to America and begins to vote the Democratic ticket."

The appreciation of this latter fact fully accounts for the revolt of Irish-Americans. They know that Ireland's prosperity has been destroyed by the British policy of free trade, and that voting the Democratic party into power would destroy the prosperity of the United States, a result which would be hailed by all England with the highest degree of satisfaction. As they owe no love to England they are in favor of a thoroughly American and therefore anti-English policy and will vote for Blaine and Logan as the representatives of that policy.

IT can be said in favor of the Rev. Mr. Ball, who has been brought prominently before the public in connection with the stories concerning Mr. Cleveland's private life, that he has met promptly and satisfactorily every attempt the Democratic papers have made to traduce him. They first charged him with being a political striker. Mr. Ball at once showed that his only connection with politics had been while acting as president of a temperance association, in which capacity he aided in the election of Mr. Cleveland as mayor of Buffalo on the assurance from the Democrats that he would enforce the excise law. The next story was that he had insulted a lady in Indiana, leaving the worst construction possible to be put upon the word "insulted." The only basis for this charge was the fact that while preaching in that state he had requested a lady to remain quiet after she had twice, though unintentionally, disturbed the service. His answer to the last charge, that of drunkenness and immorality, is a libel suit against the paper which published it. So that thus far Mr. Ball seems to have the best of his enemies.

THE theory that there is an intimate relation between earthquakes and volcanoes does not appear to be well founded. There are a number of volcanoes in sections where earthquakes are seldom felt, and where earthquakes are frequent there are no volcanoes. In the tropics where both are plentiful there is more or less sympathy between them. The fall of a large portion of the earth crust into the central sea of molten lava is very liable to start the smoke out of the earth's chimneys, just as a charge of coal thrown into a furnace sends the smoke out of the tall stack. Should a large body of water accompany the falling mass then an explosion takes place, the earthquake shock is felt, and with escaping steam carries ashes and lava out with it.

THE Franco-Chinese imbroglio has begun to assume a ludicrous character says the Pittsbugh Dispatch, and the feeling of most nations not directly interested in the controversy is nearly akin to the expressions of European opinion during the Mexican war of 1848. The Chinese have a world-wide reputation of making such more noise than anything else in such battles as they have participated in and it is only very recently that they have become possessed of any of the modern means of warfare. They are naturally a peaceable people, and notwithstanding their great numbers, could be very easily defeated along their seacost by any European power. The capture (?) of Ke Lung and the grandiloquent dispatches of the French Admiral Lespes, lead to the conclusion that the people of the Celestial empire are still pursuing their old mode of defense with gongs and firecrackers.

TAKE YOUR CHOICE.

[Contributed.]

As candidate for President
The people's choice is James G. Blaine;
For they would fill the chair of State
With high capacity and brain.

As normal Democratic choice
A Cleveland o'er the course now struts;
For knaves prefer to fill that chair
With corporosity and guts.

Capacity and brain alone
Should o'er the people's interests rule;
But corporosity and guts
Alone, could only make a tool.

Wherefore, knavish politicians
Distrust capacity and brains;
But fondly trust the Simple Guts
To yield them greatest knavish gains.

HER BONNET.

[From The Century "Bric-a-Brac."]

When meeting bells began to toll,
And pious folks began to pass,
She deftly tied her bonnet on,
The little, sober meeting-lass,
All in her neat, white-curtained room, before her tiny looking glass.

So nicely, round her lady-cheeks,
She smoothed her bands of glossy hair,
And innocently wondered if
Her bonnet did not make her fair;—
Then sternly chid her foolish heart for harboring such fancies there.

So square she tied the satin strings,
And set the bows beneath her chin;—
Then smiled to see how sweet she looked;
Then thought her vanity a sin,
And she must put such thoughts away before the sermon should begin.

But sitting 'neath the preached word,
Demurely, in her father's pew,
She thought about her bonnet still—
Yes, all the parson's sermon through—
About the pretty bows and buds which better than the text she knew.

Yet sitting there with peaceful face,
The reflex of her simple soul,
She looked to be a very saint—
And may be was one on the whole—
Only that her pretty bonnet kept away the aureole.

MARY E. WILKINS.

THE SALOON SPIDER.

A spider sat in his basement den
Weaving his snare for the souls of men.
"I will not work with my hands," quoth he,
"An easier pathway must open for me."
He spreads his tables of greenest baize,
And many a cunning trap he lays.
The marble halls are smooth and white,
The den is blazing with floods of light.
Behind the bar the spider stands;
There is not a wise man in the land
But will not lose his wit and become a fool
If he yields himself to the spider's rule.
There's not a man so strong and brave
But the spider will dig him a shameful grave;
There's not a youth so noble and fair
But will learn to drink and gamble and swear
In the spider's den. But do not, pray, dare to dispute the spider's sway.
If you sweep the den with the law's strong broom
Perhaps you might make a cleaner room.
But then men are fearful—a little afraid
In fact, on spiders to make a raid;
'Twould stir up excitement, and spiders must live,
So our dear household treasures we patiently give.
The spider still sits in his basement den
Lying in wait for the souls of men.

ONLY A PIN.

[From The Carmarthan Journal.]

Only a pin?
And it calmly lay
In the shining light
Of a bright noonday.

Only a boy,
He saw that pin,
And fixed on it a look intent
Till boy and pin alike were bent.

Only a chair—
It had no business standing there.
The boy he put on a fiendish grin,
And on the seat of that chair he fixed that pin.

Only a man,
He sat on that chair,
And as he rose—
So did his hair.

Only a yell!
But an honest one;
It lacked all elements of fun,
And man, and boy, and pin, and chair,
In wild confusion mingled there.

Our Story Teller.

Mr. Bulstead's Surprise.

Mr. Bulstead's third and last letter bore the Oxford postmark; as he opened it he frowned. His niece, who had long ago noted that particular letter with apprehension, helped him in haste to the hottest and choicest kidney on the dish. Maggie knew well that of late the contents of letters from Oxford were far from welcome.

"Now, I will not stand this any longer?" cried the irritable old gentleman dashing his fist upon the table, and narrowly missing the just arrived and juicy kidney. "Now, Master Tom has tried my patience once too often! Bill after bill have I settled during the last three months, expecting each to be the last; and, forsooth, listen to this, miss! To five hundred lawn-tennis balls, £12 10s.; to rackets, as per former account, £8 10s.; to marking machines, £4; to—good gracious!—to half a ton of whiting, £4; total, £29! Good gracious! I say; does the young scapegrace live upon whiting?"

"Oh, it must be a mistake, uncle?"

"Mistake, indeed! Why, did not I have a bill of £2 10s. for dog-collars? Was that a mistake too? And the wine bill, and Symonds' bill for horse-hire? All mistakes, of course! You may thank your stars, lady," cried the old gentleman, abandoning the indignantly satirical for the savagely personal tone, "that I would not let you tie yourself to this extravagant nephew of mine. Now I've done with him, and so have you."

Maggie rose from the table with a flushed face, and looked from the window with eyes that saw little of the square outside through their tears. But, like a wise girl, she kept silence, and the kind-hearted old gentleman, after storming once or twice up and down the room, began to cast uneasy glances at the window. If there was one person whom Mr. Bulstead loved before and above the cause of his present anger, it was his niece Maggie Lloyd.

"Well, well," said he, sitting down to his now cold kidney. "There, my dear, give me another cup of tea. Half a ton of whiting—the lad must have gone mad!"

"It might have gone in worse things than whiting," she suggested humbly, but with a humorous quiver at the corner of a pretty mouth.

"So it might; that's true." The old gentleman was a little more strait-laced than most Londoners, "I'll tell you what, Maggie; I'll give Tom one more chance. I'll go down to Oxford by the 11 o'clock train, giving him no notice, and see for myself what sort of life he is living. If he is doing nothing worse than to waste money, I'll forgive him; but if I find the young fellow is as vicious as some of these Oxford sparks, why, then"—and he assumed a quite unaccustomed tone of cool determination—"I've done with nephew Tom."

Maggie trifled with the teaspoon, her eyes bent upon her plate. Her uncle's irritability was little to be feared; it was more than neutralized by his kindness of heart. But she knew him to be on rare occasions, and in some matters a man of great obstinacy and loving her cousin with all her heart, she dreaded the result of her uncle's projected trip. Tom would be doing nothing dreadful, but he might be doing something Mr. Bulstead might object to. To move her uncle from his resolve, once expressed in this way, she knew to be beyond even her influence; the more as the old gentleman, who had a few months before forbidden any express engagement between the cousins, was a little inclined to resent any influence she might try to exert in Tom's behalf.

"I shall not want any more tea, thank you, so you may go to your music lesson, if you like. I shall just go to the Athenæum for an hour, and then to Paddington. I'll leave orders about the carriage, and if you like you can meet the 6 o'clock train with it."

When Mr. Bulstead reached his club he found, to his disgust, that his favorite chair was occupied by a bishop. Had it been anyone else, he would not have scrupled at attempting to oust him by one of those forms of strategy so well known to club rooms; but as it was, he ran his eye over the Times "all standing," and took his seat in a cab not in the best of tempers. "Half a ton of whiting!" he muttered to himself, in tones of fretful speculation, as he passed through Park Lane.

He felt a little like a spy as he hurried across Canterbury Quad, and made with all speed for the bottom of Tom's stair case. The scout, old "Dot and go one," as he was called, from his wooden leg, in vain assayed to detain him. Up went Mr. Bulstead two steps as a time to the second floor, where, above the left-hand door, appeared, in white letters upon a black ground, his own name. He knocked sharply, and, hardly waiting for some one within to utter what might or might not be "Come in," threw it open and entered. Lounging upon one of the window-seats, in flannels and a cigarette in his mouth, was a young fellow, whose good-looking face was rather manly and straighforward than handsome. He was alone and got up without much appearance of flurry.

"How do you do, uncle? I thought it was you crossing the quad. Take a seat. Why did you not let me know that you were coming?"

Mr. Bulstead took the proffered seat, and panted as he looked around. The stairs were steep, and his wind was not so good as it had been.

I thought I would come upon you a bit by surprise, Tom," he said, without any circumlution. "The fact is, it is that whiting that has brought me."

"What, uncle!" ejaculated Tom, with his first show of surprise.

"Half a ton of whiting!" murmured his uncle, irresistibly impelled to dwell upon the mystery. "Half a ton of whiting! Ah, here it is." And he flourished the bill under the other's nose.

He took it gingerly and opened it with a serious face. It seemed to Mr. Bulstead that he was not quite so much at his ease as he would have his uncle believe and the old man glanced suspiciously round the room. It certainly was not the room of a hard working, hard-reading student; but still there was nothing objectionable in it. He turned his glance again upon Tom; the latter was contemplating the bill with a broad smile genuine enough.

"Well," said Mr. Bulstead, "what have you to say about it? Half a ton of whiting, you know, Tom."

The young man laughed loudly.

"I am not in fault this time, sir; it is the Lawn Tennis Club's account sent in to me as secretary. I gave the groundman the check to pay it last week, and why they should have had the impudence to send it to you I can't imagine."

"Umph! but how about the whiting, Tom? What is that for?"

"Marking out the ground, sir."

"Of course it is, Tom! Very stupid of me. Well, I'm very glad of it, my boy," said Mr. Bulstead pleasantly. The mystery of the whiting was cleared up, but somehow it made him suspicious.

"Now," said Tom, "will you come with me to a shop I want to call at in the High—not a hundred yards off, sir? and by the time we come back lunch will be ready."

Was the dust of that whiting still in Mr. Bulstead's eyes? At any rate, it seemed to him that his nephew was peculiarly and restlessly anxious to get him out of the rooms. However, he rose.

"Yes, Tom, certainly. Where did I put my umbrella? Ah, here it is, thank you. Why—what—the—deuce—is—that?"

If it had been another half ton of whiting piled upon the sofa the old gentleman's face could not have grown darker. The thing lying half hidden by the sofa cushion was a lady's parasol—a dainty, tiny, wicked looking sunshade of gray silk, and by it a glove of too, too apparent French kind. Mr. Bulstead's worst fears were confirmed with a vengeance. All along he had felt that there was something; this was the haunt of wicked dissipation he had half feared he should find it. Half a ton of whiting, indeed! In a moment, and before he had glanced at the young fellow's confused face, he thought the worst of him,

"Well, sir," he said, and there was real sorrow as well as anger in the tones, "can you explain this with equal ease?"

"No, I cannot, sir; but—"

"You can't? Cannot say whose they are, or how they came to be in your rooms? Fie, sir, fie! Or where their owner is now, I suppose?" he added, suddenly recalling the scout's seeming attempts to delay him at the foot of the stairs, and marking the doors that led to two inner rooms.

"I cannot account for them."

"And will not, I suppose?"

"You can put it that way if you like, sir. All that I can say is that I am innocent of what you are thinking of me. I give you my word of honor, I am; and I can't say any more."

The old man was a little impressed by the youngster's earnestness. The obnoxious articles might have been left there innocently, of course."

"Then let me have a look into your other rooms, young man, if you wish me to believe you."

"No, I can't do that," cried Tom, springing, as the other advanced, toward the nearest door and setting his back against it. He was cooler now, and not a bit confused. The old gentleman, even in his anger, noticed that he looked more handsome than ever before.

"Don't be a fool, Tom!" he cried, imperatively. Then suddenly changing his tone to an appealing one—"Make a clean breast of it, and I'll try to forgive you."

"There's nothing to forgive."

"Then open that door. You won't?"

"No."

"As I live, if you don't before I count three, I'll cut you off without a shilling. Now, sir, one, two—it's your last chance—three! There, sir, I've done with you now, sir—I've done with you—I've done with you!" And clapping on his hat, with furious haste and yet shaking steps the old gentleman ran down the stairs and, his heart full of sorrow and anger, made for the station.

"Ah, Tom, Tom! A minute later he opened the inner door, and looked rather anxiously at the half frightened, wholly pretty face that appeared at it.

"Did you hear anything?" he asked.

"No, but do let me get away. I am so nervous. He was very angry, wasn't he? Yes. What was it about, Tom? Bills?"

"Yes," was the somewhat halting reply; "bills and other things. I dare say he'll cool down. If you hear anything against me, you won't believe it, will you?"

"Oh, Tom, how can you ask?"

"Then there is no harm done," answered Tom bravely and gallantly. And after reconnoitring from the window the two left the rooms.

To return to Mr. Bulstead, Senior. It was a great trouble for him. Looking back upon that half-ton of whiting, he wondered how that could have made him angry with the lad. If he would only have kept to that he could have forgiven him a ship-load of whiting. But this was a different matter, and the more the old gentleman thought of it, the worse it appeared to him. Still he was a just and fair man; he had no real intention of cutting off the young profligate, as he termed him in his thoughts, with a shilling. He would make him some sufficient, but small, allowance, but near his house or near Maggie he would not have him.

He made this last determination known to Maggie, merely adding that her cousin had behaved so ill that he had forbidden him the house. The announcement was received with a woman's strongest remonstrances, silent tears. Altogether things were rather gloomy that June in Fitzroy square.

One morning Mr. Bulstead made up his mind to see his lawyer about Tom, "I'll get over it," he said to himself, with a sigh, as he sought for his umbrella in the stand. It took him some time to find it.

"Bless the umbrella!" he cried at length, fumbling among the heap. "Is that it? No! Nor that. Why, what's this? Well, I'm dashed!"

Only the word which he used was a stronger one, and one which seldom, even in moments of irritability, escaped him. But now, at the sight of a sun-shade in the umbrella-stand, he solemnly repeated it twice: "Well, I am dashed!"

Then he stood in the hall for some minutes whistling softly to himself, This done, he went rather slowly and thoughtfully up to the drawing-room, and stood on the hearth-rug.

"Were you at Oxford when I was there on the 28th of last month?"

"Yes," answered Maggie, horribly frightened, and yet relieved at getting the matter off her mind. She had not confessed simply because she was afraid of increasing her uncle's anger against Tom. "Yes, I was, uncle. You said you were going to put Tom to the test, and I was afraid he might be doing something to displease you. I went to warn him."

"And you were in his rooms while I was there?"

"Yes. It was foolish of me; you followed me so closely, and I was afraid to face you. Tom put me in the Scout's Hole, as he called it."

"So you deceived me between you?" said he harshly.

"No, sir; I did. Tom knew nothing of my coming; he was afraid for me, not for himself."

"Did he tell you what I was angry about?"

"After you were gone?"

"Of course!" snapped Mr. Bulstead, poking the fire vigorously.

"I think," said Maggie timidly, for now it was Tom's favor was at stake, "he said it was about bills. He had nothing to do with my journey to Oxford."

"And a nice ladylike thing you consider it, I suppose, gadding about to young men's rooms. Very well. Since you seem inclined to mix yourself up with his affairs, you will write to him to come up to town to-morrow and call here. When you are both together I'll tell you what I think of it. A pretty pair of fools!"

And Mr. Bulstead fumed his way out of the room with much outward heat, and an angry expression of countenance. But the butler, who watched his exit with awe, and opined that there had been stormy weather upstairs, was amazed to hear him mutter with an audible chuckle as he reached the darkest angle of the staircase, "Good lad! good lad!"

Tom of course, came up as fast as the Great Western would bring him; and when they were both together, Mr. Bulstead told the culprits what he thought of it. No happier trio sat down to dinner that day in London than the party presided over by our friend's butler. Somewhere in the old gentleman's nature was a large lump of the chivalrous, and, for the sake of Tom's gallantry, Maggie's deception was forgiven. In no long time he did visit his lawyer, but it was upon business more pleasant both to himself and to that professional gentleman. "For a really paying piece of work," the latter has often been heard to say in confidence, "give me a marriage settlement."—London Society.

A Portrait of Chinese Gordon.

In person General Gordon is slight and short. His appearance is more suggestive of activity than stateliness and nothing can be more unassuming than his manner. There is a beautiful child-like simplicity about his smile, which recalls, by a certain curious association of ideas, the impression produced by the first sight of Mr. Carlyle. But there is something about his lower face suggestive of latent "hardness," of a will that can be as of iron, and of a decision that shrinks not at hewing Agag in pieces before the Lord, should the necessity unfortunately arise. In him a sympathy as impulsive and as tender as that of a woman is united with the fierceness and daring of an ancient Viking. The man is positively unique in this combination of puritan and crusader, humanitarian and soldier, revolutionist and man of order, idealist and man of affairs, that our times have seen. The diversified influences flowing from this heterogeneous conglomeration of antithetical qualities act and react upon his mind with a most bewildering result. Never was there any man so difficult to follow or so easy to understand. "Gordon," said one who knew him well, "was created for the express purpose of confounding all newspaper editors. He never says the same thing twice or sticks to one opinion two hours together. Yet by those who are capable of looking below the surface and clearing away the apparent inconsistencies, there will be found a clear silver thread of consistent purpose running through all his impulsive vagaries of thought and expression." To the persons of routine and humdrum Gordon is a sheer lunatic. To the official with his red tape and straight lace he is a bete noire. A man who is constantly saying and doing the most paradoxical things, whose mind is quicksilver, and whose life is dominated by a curious combination of the religious principles of Cromwell and Thomas a Kempi, is indeed an incomprehensible phenomenon to the dwellers in the well-ordered realm of commonplace. Those who have no faiths, but only habits, are naturally at a loss to account for a man of admitted genius whose convictions are the oddest jumble of enthasiasms that can be imagined. A Governor-General of the Soudan, who interrupts his administrative duties in order to try to nurse a starving little black baby back into life; the patron saint of the Antislavery Society, who legitimatizes the slave-trade by a decree and resolves upon appointing the king of the slave-traders as sovereign of Khartoum, is not a man to be described by any formula; he must be classed by himself. So men who have not a tithe of his administrative genius, or his shrewd political sagacity, shrug their shoulders and say that Gordon is mad. And, of course, if they themselves are the type of true sanity, they are right; but if so, then he is one of those madmen whose madness is of the nature of inspiration. Gordon's eccentricity, of which many strange stories are told, his impulsiveness, his unreasoning generosity, do not in the least impair the marvelous influence which he seems to exert on all with whom he comes in contact.—From an article by W. T. Stead, in the August Century.

When a man takes hold of a hot poker we always notice that he has no inclination to hold on. It is different with hot whisky. Yet both burn, but mankind seems to think that the scars outside are worse than the scars inside. This is a want of judgment. The hot poker only burns the hand, but the hot whisky burns the body, the brain, the head, the muscles, the manhood and the soul. The poker only makes a scar on the hand, hot whisky makes the whole man a scar, a blotch. The poker burn can be healed, the whisky burn is a living sore. If we are to take hold of either, give us the hot poker.

The latest fashion in trousers is to melt a dude and pour him in hot.

Dancing.

The writer of this article desires to call the attention of Christian parents to the subject of dancing, as this monster evil has invaded the homes of many who claim to be the followers of Him who was the only perfect human example. To such I would especially ask to ponder well. Dancing by many is thought to be a delightful pastime, an innocent amusement and a harmless recreation. This is no doubt the view taken by those who stand without the pale of the church; but such views can never be taken by those who are within its pale; if they wish to follow the promptings of Him to whom they have dedicated their soul; or if they would be led by that blessed word that draws us nearer to God and prepares us for immortal glory. I can confidently say that I believe not one of the class that I have referred to would ever engage in such pastime if they knew the poluting danger that flowed from this cess pool of iniquity. I will deal with this question just as I would with any other in determining right or wrong for the Christian. Anything that is sinful is wrong for the Christian to do; anything that is a temptation to sin is wrong, because it is sinful. Our Exemplar asked our Father to lead him not "into temptation." Dancing was from the very first the favorite sport of sin. The foulest dens of degradation and the lowest brothels of human depravity that infest our land, make night hideous with the song of dance and life loathsome from their sensual pleasures—"And such things are acted there as make the very devils blush." Why then "touch, taste or handle anything that will defile?" Dancing is practiced by the most depraved every were, for no other object than the basest sins, and it is the greatest and most powerful means of accomplishing the vilest of purposes. Mothers, I wish you could see the dance in all its sinful forms, and then determine whether your son or your daughter should be placed by you in the tempter's way. There are about as many grades of human depravity as there are human souls, each one thinking their sin less than the other or that their society and amusements are high-toned, and consequently sin is kept in the background. There are two other sister sins always associated with the one under consideration and are delightful indulgences to these wicked votaries of pleasure, namely the card and the wine cup. These three sisters are always employed in these sins of the devil, for no other purpose, than to captivate and ruin those that are sought after. There is nothing sinful in the card or the wine cup itself, any more than there is in the saloon or the brothel, yet where is the mother that would permit her son or her daughter to spend their evenings in either of the two places? And I can positively assure you that neither of the two places are sinful in themselves; but it is the use that is made of a thing that makes it a vessel of honor or dishonor. The house of God is a place where His people love to meet, and dear mothers you can feel safe when your son and daughter are there knowing that it is not a place used for temptation. A word or two more on the use of things. A gun is called a deadly weapon and is made for no other purpose, although it may be used for other purposes, such as carrying water or milk or to keep jellies in. A sword or spear is also a deadly weapon and yet it may be used for cutting bread, meat or paring potatoes, &c. So on with the whole list of man's inventions. In the natural world we are confined to the strict use for which the Author intended his creation, as for instance apples do not grow on walnut trees or potatoes on apple trees and so on ad infinitum.

Dear mothers, the fact or truth that I wish to nail to your conscience is that dancing, as well as the other two evils, is one of the devil's pleasures and is employed by him for no other purpose than to ruin souls. Then why will you permit your son or your daughter to participate in a pleasure that the devil uses for the ruin of souls and never for the glory of God, Remember that the apple which Adam ate had nothing in it, sinful.

How he Came to "Swear Off."

"No, I won't drink with you today, boys," said a drummer to several companions, as they settled down in the smoking car and passed the bottle. "The fact is, boys, I have quit drinking—I've sworn off." He was greeted with shouts of laughter by the jolly crowd around him; they put the bottle under his nose and indulged in many jokes at his expense, but he refused to drink, and was rather serious about it. "What's the matter with you, old boy?" sang out one. "If you've quit drinking, something's up; tell us what it is." "Well, boys, I will, though I know you will laugh at me. But I'll tell you all the same. I have been a drinking man all my life, ever since I was married; as you all know, I love whisky—it's as sweet in my mouth as sugar—and God only knows how I'll quit. For seven years not a day has passed over my head that I didn't have at least one drink. But I am done. Yesterday I was in Chicago. Down on South Clark street a customer of mine keeps a pawn shop in connection with other business. I called on him, and while I was there a young man of not more than 25, wearing threadbare clothes and looking as hard as if he hadn't seen a sober day for a month, came in with a little package in his hand. Tremblingly he unwrapped it, and handed the article to the pawnbroker, saying, 'Give me ten cents.' And, boys, what do you suppose it was? A pair of baby shoes, little things with the buttons only a trifle soiled, as if they had been worn only once or twice. 'Where did you get these?' asked the pawnbroker. 'Got 'em at home,' replied the man, who had an intelligent face and the manner of a gentleman despite his bad condition. 'My—my wife bought them for our baby. Give me ten cents for 'em—I want a drink.' 'You had better take the shoes back to your wife; the baby will need them,' said the pawnbroker. 'No s-she won't, because—because she's dead. She's lying at home now—died last night.' As he said this the poor fellow broke down, bowed his head on the show case and cried like a child. Boys," said the drummer, "you can laugh if you please, but I—I have a baby of my own at home, and I swear I'll never drink another drop." Then he got up and went into another car. His companions glanced at each other in silence; no one laughed; the bottle disappeared, and soon each was sitting in a seat by himself reading a newspaper.—Chicago Herald.

What is Man?

Man that is born of woman is small potatoes, and few in the hill.

He riseth up to-day and flourisheth like a rag weed, and to morrow, or the day after, the undertaker has him in the ice-box.

He goeth forth in the morning warbling like a lark, and is knocked out in one round and two seconds.

In the midst of life he is in debt, and the tax collector pursueth him wherever he goeth.

The banister of life is full of splinters, and he slideth down it with considerable rapidity.

He walketh forth in the bright sunlight to absorb ozone, and meeteth the bank-teller with a sight-draft for $357.

He cometh home at eventide and meeteth the wheelbarrow in his path, and the wheelbarrow riseth up and smiteth him to the earth, and runneth one of its legs into his ear.

In the gentle spring-time he putteth on his summer clothes, and a blizzard striketh him far away from home and filleth him with woe and rheumatism.

He layeth up riches in the bank, and the president speculateth in margins and then goeth to Canada for his health.

In the autumn he putteth on his winter trousers, and a wasp that abideth in them filleth him full of intense excitement.

He starteth down cellar with an oleander, and goeth first hastily, and the oleander cometh after him and sitteth upon him.

He sitteth up all night to get the returns from Ohio, and in the end learneth that the other fellows have carried it.

He buyeth a watch dog, and when he cometh home late from the Lodge, the watch-dog treeth him and sitteth beneath him until rosy morn.

He goeth to the horse trot and betteth his money on the brown mare, and the bey gelding with the blaze face winneth.

He marrieth a red-haired heiress with a wart on her nose, and, the next day her parental ancestor goeth under, with few assets and great liabilities, and cometh home to live with his beloved son-in-law.

All Sorts.

The sweetest thing in this life is the unclouded welcome of a wife.

The easiest work and the best pay always go to some other fellow.

The latest pleasantry of the tramp is that he "banked with Grant & Ward."

A child without the innocence of childhood is a flower without perfume.

A nice, pious young man, who tried to steal a kiss from a Washington belle, got his nose so covered with red paint that his pastor subsequently stopped him in the street and discoursed to him for ten minutes on the evils of strong drink.

"It seems to me," said a Vermont Judge to his daughter, "That your young man calls a good many times a week. My court doesn't sit anywhere near as often as yours does." "Oh well, papa," was the blushing reply, "I am engaged to him, you know, and that entitles us to a court of special sessions."

"Yes, sir, coffee in a healthful drink," remarked a man yesterday; "I saw in the paper that Mrs. Taylor of Virginia, who has passed her ninety-ninth birthday, drinks eight cups of coffee a day." "Oh, pshaw!" replied another; "if she had drank only two, she'd have been over a hundred years old by this time."

A good word in passing: A young woman, in erecting a monument to the 'dear departed,' cleverly availed herself of the opportunity to inscribe upon the tomb: "Sacred to the memory of Mathusin Bexuchet who departed this life aged sixty-eight years, regretting the necessity of parting from the most charming and best of women."

"Hullo, Jones, where are you going?" said Smith as he met Jones hurrying down the street with his gripsack in his hand. "Going to take the steamer for Europe." "Going to take the steamer for Europe! Why, man, they've got the cholera there this year." "I know it, but they haven't got a Presidential election there this year; good-bye."

Horse theives have no mercy shown them in Idaho. If they are caught a short shrift and a noosed rope or a pistol ball are their certain fate. One such was found dead the other day at Kuna, in the Warm Springs district, lying in the sage brush. In the centre of his forehead was a bullet hole, and across his breast was pinned a placard with the legend "horse thief."

THEY WON'T CARRY ME.

BY JENNIE L. ENO.

To his tumble-down house in Hardscrabble Lane
Jack Morgan came stumbling home through the rain;
His clothes hung in tatters, on his head was—his hair;
His shoes were old boots once thrown by as past wear.

He routed his wife, as, crouched on her knees,
She fanned the dull embers with still duller breeze,
While thoughts of past happiness crowded her mind,
When plenty was round them and Jack was so kind.

"Get up, wife," he cried. "Quick! fasten the door;
The temperance people are moving once more.
They may 'carry the town,' but one thing you'll see:
Though they carry the nation, they won't carry me."

Then, doors barricaded and windows nailed down,
He tumbled to bed defying the town;
What harm could the innocent drunkard betide
In his home with the temperance people outside?

But as the day on the hills is beginning to break
He finds he has made a most stupid mistake;
No stronger teetotalers dwell in the land
Than they who surround him on every hand.

One look through his home compells him to think
Of comfort destroyed by the demon of drink;
The children crowd round him with pledge and with pen,
And ask for his name there again and again.

And then little Katie climbed up on his knee
With her pretty new paper for her papa to see,
And asked for his name close up at the top;
For she knew if she had it there troubles would stop.

He cried, "'Tis too much. What a fool I have been
To fasten my enemies not out, but in!
A man couldn't stand you though firm as a wall;
Hand over your pledges and I'll sign them all.

"The temperance people I've fought with my might,
Yet knew all the time that their way was but right.
Fling the windows wide open, pull the door fastenings down,
For they have carried me, if they haven't the town."

A Bit of Gatesburg Gossip.

GATESBURG, Aug. 9, 1884.

MR. EDITOR: We are all busy, hence have not much time to write.

Miss Mollie Beck, of Centre Line, is at present visiting at her uncle's in our village. Hope she will have an enjoyable time.

Mr. Jacob Ryder has erected a very beautiful and durable fence around his residence which adds greatly to the appearance of the premises.

Mr. E. R. Musser, of Fairbrook, intends returning to Stone Valley Academy about August 12. As the school is an excellent one and Mr. Musser is known to be studious, the end of the school term will find him with a largely increased store of useful knowledge.

Mr. J. B. Lemon, of Tyrone, arrived in our village this evening on a mission which we shall not attempt to explain. You know that misunderstandings are often liable to arise and ladies are not always capable of resisting the temptation to take a pleasure drive. Hope we will again be favored with Mr. Lemon's presence at a future date.

Some workmen at the Tow Hill mines, while engaged in partaking of their noon-day meal, had their attention attracted by clouds of insects or bees flying around the base of a large tree. They carefully examined it but found no bee retreat there. However, as a joke, they quietly divulged the fact of the bees' presence. Mr. W. Wike, who is noted for his valor in the deer chase got news of it, and the next night repaired thither, well equipped with axes, buckets, tubs, etc., and worked away until perspiration poured from his countenance and blisters appeared on his hands. He soon had the satisfaction of seeing the monster tree felled, but was greatly chagrined when he perceived that it was as sound throughout as a Mexican dollar. Anyone desiring the good will of Mr. Wike will refrain from broaching the subject of bees or deer to him. CAINS.

Two Deaths at Coleville.

Two deaths occurred at Coleville on Tuesday evening, the 12th instant, at almost the same hour and under similar circumstances, causing much sorrow in that small village. Mr. Lot Stratton, who is well known in this vicinity, has been afflicted with consumption for a long time, his death resulting Tuesday evening. He was quite an aged gentleman. The funeral services occurred on Friday morning at 10 o'clock. It seems that Mrs. Poorman, also of Coleville, has suffered from the same disease, and she expired on Tuesday. She leaves quite a large family of children. The funeral was held at 10 o'clock Thursday morning. We sympathise with the sorrowing friends.

"You are not taking as good care of yourself as formerly, old man. What's the trouble? A streak of hard luck?" "Yes, rather." "What are you doing?" "I am landlord of a large summer resort hotel." "I shouldn't think you would have very much reason to complain if that's the case. Last season you were only a waiter." "I know it," he answered, regretfully.

Old maids would make a very tiresome literary society, because they are always ready for the question.

Songs Never Sung.

"How does that verse run? Something like this, isn't it?

"'There are who touch the magic string,
And noisy fame is proud to win them;
Alas! for those who never sing,
But die with all their music in them.'"

"Yes, that's beautiful, pathetic and true," said your representative. "The poet alludes to people who are somehow suppressed, and never get their full allowance of joy and air. Which reminds me of a letter shown me the other day by Hiscox & Co., of New York, signed by Mr. E. C. Williams of Chapman, Snyder Co., Pa., a prominent business man of that place. He writes:

"'I have suffered with asthma for over forty years, and had a terrible attack in December and January, 1882. I hardly know what prompted me to take PARKER'S TONIC. I did so, and the first day I took four doses. The effect astonished me. That night I slept as if nothing was the matter with me, and have ever since. I have had colds since but no asthma. My breathing is now as perfect as if I had never known that disease. If you know of any one who has asthma tell him in my name that PARKER'S TONIC will cure it—even after forty years.'" There was a man who escaped the fate of those whom the poet laments.

This preparation, which has heretofore been known as PARKER'S GINGER TONIC, will hereafter be advertised and sold under the name of PARKER'S TONIC. Inasmuch as ginger is really an unimportant ingredient, and unprincipled dealers are constantly deceiving their customers by substituting inferior preparations under the name of ginger, we drop the misleading word.

There is no change, however, in the preparation itself, and all the bottles remaining in the hands of dealers, wrapped under the name of PARKER'S GINGER TONIC contain the genuine medicine if the fac simile signature of Hiscox & Co. is at the bottom of the outside wrapper. 16 30 4t

How Watch Cases are Made.

The many great improvements introduced in the manufacture of the Jas. Boss' Gold Watch Case, have led to similar improvements in the making of silver cases.

Under the old methods, each part of a silver case was made of several pieces of metal soldered together, requiring a great amount of cutting and soldering, which softened the metal and gave it the pliability of lead rather than the elasticity of silver.

Under the improved methods, each part of the Keystone Silver Watch Case is made of one solid piece of metal hammered into shape. The advantages are readily apparent, for every one knows that hammering hardens the metal while soldering softens it.

To test the superiority of the Keystone Silver Watch Case, take one of 3 oz. weight, press it squarely in the center when closed, and it will not give, while a case of same weight of any other make will give enough to break the crystal. The Keystone Silver Watch Case is made only with silver cap and gold joints.

Send 2 cent stamp to Keystone Watch Case Factories, Philadelphia, Pa., for handsome Illustrated Pamphlet showing how James Boss' and Keystone Watch Cases are made.

The Republican for 50 Cents.

The most interesting political campaign which this country has ever experienced has just commenced. Every man, woman and child in Centre county should read a reliable newspaper, and as the REPUBLICAN is the only paper of that sort in Centre county we will offer it to all new subscribers from July 23 until December 10 for the low price of 50 cents, STRICTLY IN ADVANCE.

This reduction for this campaign is rendered more necessary by the fact that the recent Democratic legislature reduced the salaries of all employes and then stole money to pay themselves for extra and unnecessary time spent in—doing nothing; also because the Forty-eighth Congress refused necessary appropriations and reduced many others below their usual amount, and to add to their enormous crimes, attempted tariff legislation which prostrated business, closed factories, threw thousands of men out of employment and raised Cain generally. These Democratic measures have rendered many of our subscribers poorer than they otherwise would have been. Send in your names at once for the REPUBLICAN for the campaign of 1884.

Greely's Official Statement.

WASHINGTON, August 14.—The following is Greely's official report of the execution of Private Henry:

PORTSMOUTH, N. H., August 11, 1884. To the adjutant-general of the United States army, through the Chief signal officer of the United States army:

Sir: I have the honor to report that on June 6, 1884, at Camp Clay, near Cape Sabine, Grinnell Land, it became necessary for me to order the military execution of Private Charles B. Henry, of the Fifth cavalry, for continued thieving.

The order was given in writing on my individual responsibility, it being deemed absolutely essential for the safety of the surviving members of the expedition. Ten had already died of starvation and two more lay at the point of death. The facts inducing my action were as follows:

Provisions had been stolen in November, 1883, and Henry's complicity therein was more than suspected. On March 24, 1884, the party nearly perished from asphyxia. While several of the men were unconscious and efforts were being made for their restoration, Private Henry stole about two pounds of bacon from the mess stores. He was not only seen by Eskimo, Jans, and Edwards, but his stomach being overloaded, he threw up undigested bacon. An open investigation was held, and every member of the party declared him guilty of this and other thefts. A clamor for his life was raised, but was repressed by me. I put him under surveillance until our waning strength rendered his physical services indispensable.

Later, he was found, one day, intoxicated, having stolen the liquor on hand for general use. A second time his life was demanded, but I again spared him. On June 5th, thefts of provisions on his part having been reported to me, I had a conversation with him, in which I appealed to his practical sense, pointing out that union was necessary to our preservation. He promised entire reformation, but, distrusting him, I issued a written order that he should be shot if detected stealing. On June 6th he not only stole part of the shrimps for our breakfast, but visiting, unauthorized, our winter camp, stole certain sealskins reserved for food. I then ordered him to be shot.

On his person was found a similar chronograph, abandoned by me at Fort Conger and stolen by him. In his bag was found a large quantity of sealskin and a pair of sealskin boots stolen a few days before from the hunter. Suspecting complicity on the part of the others, I ordered his execution by three of the most reliable men. After his death the order was read to the entire party, and was concurred in by every member as being not only just but essential to our safety.

Disastrous Conflagration.

GRENADA, Miss., August 17.—A fire which broke out last night destroyed the greater portion of the business part of this town. The fire burned for three hours, consuming seventy-eight buildings and their contents. Loss, $300,000; insurance $65,000.

Jay-Eye-See and Phallas.

PHILADELPHIA, August 15.—Not since the eventful day when Maud S trotted the fastest three consecutive heats ever recorded—2:2, 12:13¼ and 2:12½—has there been such an attendance at Belmont park as was gathered there to-day, when Jay-Eye-See and Phallas attempted to beat the record, 2:09¾, made by Maud S, and 2:13¼, the best for a stallion, made by Phallas at Chicago. The mile records were not broken, but the time made by the horses more than realized the expectations of a majority of the spectators. Jay-Eye-See beat the record for three-quarters of a mile, and but for a losing break just after entering the last quarter, without doubt would have clipped a second or more off Maud S's fastest time. Phallas failed to equal his own best performance, but he trotted the three fastest consecutive heats ever recorded by a a stallion, the slowest of the three being the best record of any other stallion.

The attendance was variously estimated at from 10,000 to 12,000. The day was favorable for fast time and the track was good, except possibly a little dry and "cuppy" near the third quarter, to which Parther credits the break which prevented Say-Eye-See from lowering Maud S.'s record.

Jay-Eye See's time was 2:10¼.

Two Fires in Altoona.

ALTOONA, August 18.—A fire broke out at 3 o'clock Sunday afternoon on the second floor of Thomas Neil's building on Eleventh avenue, and a second fire started between 8 and 9 o'clock p. m. in J. H. McCollough's store. Five buildings were totally destroyed and five others so seriously damaged as to render them uninhabitable, while at least a half dozen others were more or less injured. Eight business establishments were almost entirely ruined and their proprietors left without stock or shelter. The downright loss in cash value was about $33,500, while the incidental damage cannot be estimated. The total insurance reaches nearly $31,000, but some of the victims will lose heavily.

Among the occupants of the Neil building was the Sunday Morning newspaper all the material of which except the books and two forms of type was destroyed. The Tribune building was also slightly scorched.

Grant's Third Term.

LONG BRANCH, N. J., August 14.—General Grant said to-day, referring to a report that he was willing to accept the nomination of the American Political Alliance for the presidency:

"I never heard of Ellsworth (who addressed me on that subject) until I received a letter from him tendering me the presidential nomination of the American Political Alliance. I know nothing of either the alliance or Mr. Ellsworth, with the exception of what I have read in the newspapers. I have not answered the letter and do not intend to answer it. No committee has waited on me to see if I would accept the nomination tendered me in Mr. Ellsworth's letter. I am a Republican, and I have no interest in the alliance or its action."

The Jersey Militia Camp.

TRENTON, August 13.—Quartermaster General Perrine has finished the construction of the camp at Manasquan to be occupied by the Second Brigade. A long line of snow-white tents are pitched on the ground near the Long Branch Railroad. A large force of men have been at work grading, making ditches and otherwise preparing the grounds, which are beautifully located and well adapted for the purpose. The sanitary arrangements will be perfect. An abundant supply of pure water will be obtained from wells.

Disastrous Fire in Cincinnati.

CINCINNATI, August 15.—Fire, caused by the explosion of a boiler in the saw-mill of Henton & Call, this morning, destroyed almost the entire square covered by lumber, the new cattle sheds of the Little Miami railroad company and ten small dwellings. The Little Miami tracks were blocked, preventing the passage of trains. There were rumors of loss of life, but they can not be verified. Henton & Call lose $60,000. The other losses are unknown.

A Double Tragedy.

NEW YORK, August 17.—A colored woman named Elizabeth Barker, aged 48 years, was shot and instantly killed in the town of Harison, West Chester county, this morning, by a negro named Jack Brown, with whom she had been living. Brown subsequently got very drunk and returned to the house, not supposing his shot had been fatal, and on finding his mistress dead immediately fired a ball into his own head from which he died. Jealousy caused the tragedy.

Killed in an Elevator.

LEVENWORTH, Kan., August 17.—A horrible accident occurred at Rolf's cracker factory here last evening. A boy aged 13, named John Bronke, who had been employed there about a week, was going up on the steam elevator, and it is supposed was leaning over and looking down. The second floor struck him and his head was caught between it and the elevator platform, mashing it to a jelly.

English Parliament Prorogued.

LONDON, August 14.—Parliament was prorogued to-day, with the usual ceremonies.

CAMP CURTIN.

Saturday, Sunday and Monday Among the Veterans of the G. A. R.

The train from Williamsport on Saturday evening brought Reno Post, G. A. R., of that city, also a Post composed of colored men, as well as other posts, bands and drum corps. About the same time the Mifflinburg Post with a band marched into town after a weary tramp from Centre Hall and about six o'clock the grand parade moved up High to Spring, along Spring to Bishop, along Bishop to Allegheny, and thence north to the Diamond, where it formed a dense mass, Company B, N. G., guarding the right and Gregg Post on the left. Ex-Gov. A. G. Curtin delivered a very spirited and eloquent address almost every sentiment of which was applauded. At no time is the Ex-Governor so happy as when soldiers and their achievements and the career of this nation form the subjects of his remarks. Dept. Commander Dyer responded quite briefly to Governor Curtin's address of welcome. Loud calls were made for an address from General James A. Beaver, but that gentleman was not present.

Mr. W. F. Reber, the court reporter, took the full text of Governor Curtin's speech and we are indebted to him for the following report of it:

I am assigned the very agreeable duty of welcoming you to Bellefonte. I welcome you for Centre county; I welcome you for Pennsylvania; I welcome you, veterans of the war, for the great government you saved to liberty and humanity.

Veterans of the war, we met before more than twenty years since. In my position as Chief Executive of Pennsylvania, I gave you the blue uniform and the classic eagle of liberty. I handed to the regiments of Pennsylvania the flag of the State and sent you to service, to serve liberty and humanity in this country and to teach liberty to all the world.

Early in the war the government of Pennsylvania decided that the flag should have the coat of arms of this great and loyal State in the blue field and surrounded by the stars and the thirteen stripes, indicating its nationality. I gave that flag to over three hundred thousand men myself. I gave you, veterans of the war, two hundred and seventeen flags and only two were lost in the great struggle, (cheers). You took the flag of the State and Nation and carried it through the heat of battle. Strong, stalwart and patriotic men of Pennsylvania, who preserved the flag of this great State, and they are now the sacred archives of this State at Harrisburg, to be forever preserved as symbols of heroism and fidelity.

I saw you all once before and you saw me. I gave you the flag, the emblem of our nationality, power and liberty, and thanks be to God, it was never stained by cowardice. [Three cheers and a tiger].

We met many years since when you were younger than you are now and so was I.

We met in victory and defeat; success and disaster; in the camp and in the hospital.

And when Pennsylvania decreed beneficently that the orphans of the soldier should be maintained and educated, I united cheerfully in that great benevolence and justice. (Cheers and justice.

My heart is filled with emotions of gratitude to you to-day, and my memory with recolections of the past twenty-two years.

Why, you are old veterans now, [Laughter]. Then you had the flush of youth on your cheeks, and your hair was brown, or black, or red, but now it is gray or you are bald. [Prolonged laughter and applause].

It is a long time since I saw you before. Pardon my emotions, my friends, but I have to meet with you to-day after long recollections with the pleasures of memory of thousands of you who went forth to save the government from destruction, and your presence to-day brings to my mind vivid recollections of those stirring times and fills my heart with the deepest gratitude.

Every spring when the earth is loosened from ice bound winter and smiling in flowers, you gather her first smiles and put them on the graves of your heroic comrades. Who can calculate the value to this great country of your services to it? Who can estimate to all humanity what you owe to your comrades in the war? Who can value the homage due to the graves of the heroic dead!

In my presence are many to day who saw me twenty-two years ago; many to whom I delivered the flag of the nation—many to whom I said: "Go forth and battle for freedom, equality, and liberty and bring back the flag unstained, or don't come back at all." [Cheers and applause]. But you brought the flags back [some veteran—"You are right, Mr. Curtin,"] and restored them without dishonor to the State, or your individual courage and patriotism.

Why, old veterans, you don't know how grateful I am to you to-day as an American citizen. You have made this country; you have made the country and its government, with your comrades the living and the dead, strong in the affection, of the American people and far reaching in its example to all the people of the earth, and demonstrated that man is equal to self-government, and that a government of the people can compel obedience to the law.

But now, my friends, the war is over, our country has returned to peace, beautiful peace, within all our borders there is peace.

You can say to men who struggled in battle against you—Now as peace is restored, you too are an American citizen, and will be protected by the strong arm of our government if you obey the law; and you can say to all the people in the north or in the south, the east or the west that the government of this country, will compel obedience to the law accompanying that declaration (cheers) with the blessings and benefits of our national constitution and the sovereignity of the states, and that failing to obey the law you have upon your person to-day the blue and the eagle, and carry the flag which symbolizes that obedience will be compelled. But in all my participation in that unhappy war, nothing went stronger to my heart to convince me of the future of our country and the stability of our government than when I found the gray and the blue on the battle ground at Gettysburg, brave men who had struggled there in battle; heroic men, American citizens, in friendly fraternal relations and for all future time devoting their lives to the perpetuity, of the great liberty of this wonderful people. I do not deal to-day with the men who fomented and excited the passions which led to the war in which you bore an honorable part, nor do I refer to the insane ambition which led se many eminent men into rebellion against the government. We will draw the mantle of charity, over those who are dead and leave to the truth of history those who are living.

But I tell you, my friends, there is inspiration in the heart of ever true man, patriot and soldier to forgive the men who fought against him in battle, while he may not forgive the men who induced the soldiers to go into battle against you (cheers—cries of "That is so."—Another one "That is right, Governor.")

Right! It is right my friends, for it gives to our country peace within our whole borders and allegiance to our government; and shows to the world that we give gratitude to the living and pay homage to the memory of the heroic dead. It makes us a great American nation; honored with confidence here, and respected throughout the world as a nation of freedom. We draw our ideas of a representative form of government from ancient government. History teaches by example. In Ancient Greece, when the states of Greece went to war with each other, "When Greek met Greek, then comes the tug of war." That is the true rendering of the poetry of Greece. When Greek met Greek they put up monuments to the heroic men in their temples, in their streets and their classic academic groves; they commemorated in poetry and song the memory of those who fell on the field of battle. In their intestine wars, they put monuments of wood on the battle fields where "Greek met Greek," so that the monuments might perish with time; but they put monuments of marble, stone and brass where they fought foreign enemies. Let us imitate the example of that wise and wonderful people. Place monuments in the cities and the villages to commemorate the memories of the heroic men whose lives were sacrificed to preserve the government. The admiration and respect and gratitude which is so natural to brave men who struggled in battle cannot or should not be forgotten, as it is one of the instincts of the human heart. But now as that terrible war is over and all this great people have returned to fraternal relations, let the earth-works which mark the terrible struggle moulder away under the heat and the cold, the wet and the dry, and wheat, man's food and nature's crown, grow over the graves of the heroic dead, and remind the living that as God in his mercy teaches forgiveness that attribute is in the heart of the American people.

Now let me say to you, you are no longer young and I am not as young as I was when I visited your camps and saw you before you went to battle and after battle, and when I tried to do my duty to you after the battles; that every year you will have flowers to put on more graves of your comrades as they fall one by one and twenty years more will make quite a change on such a scene and the performance of a duty so pious, and I ask when this old fellow dies put flowers on his grave and he will be satisfied. (Voices "We will," and prolonged cheers.)

Department Commander Dyer of the G. A. R. responded as follows:

Citizens of Bellefonte, Ex-Governor Curtin and Members of the Grand Army: I regret exceedingly that I am not able to reply in a fit and proper manner to the eloquent address of the old War Governor, Andrew G. Curtin, but let me say to you, sir, we appreciate most fully the cordial welcome you have extended to us. We come here, sir, as comrades of the Grand Army of the Republic to your fine town for a week of pleasure and recreation; we come together to see each other, and talk over events that took place over twenty years ago and renew the friendships formed during more than four years of strife, carnage and bloodshed. We believe, sir, the men who helped save the nation and won for themselves the name and place in history, which the Pennsylvania soldier occupies, have a right to enjoy this name they have won on hard fought battle fields in their own way. We trust, however, that when we come to take our departure from your town we shall have done nothing to forfeiture or reflect upon the honor or credit of a single member of the Grand Army of the Republic and that we will continue worthy of the confidence and trust reposed in us by this great state and nation. I thank you, sir, again for the kind and hearty welcome given us, and extend to you all a cordial invitation to visit us in our camp and enjoy yourselves.

The parade then reformed and marched out Allegheny street to Howard, then to Spring, along Spring to Linn, east along Linn and countermarched back to Allegheny, thence to High and then to camp. The line was composed of many posts and as many bands among which was the famous Weccacoe band, and also the Seltzer band of Lock Haven. No band presented a finer appearance or performed better than the Citizens' Cornet Band of Milesburg and the members of that band were loudly applauded along the line of march. The banner bearer in one of the Williamsport posts was conspicuous because of his long beard which hung over his shoulders and down his back. By the Altoona Post was borne a flag which was interesting because its worn and tattered appearance suggests that it was a relic of the war. Nothing of special importance occurred on Saturday evening, the bands giving choice serenades and the people discussing the events of the day.

Sunday opened bright, warm and beautiful. In the morning services were held in the large tent on the camp ground. At 6 o'clock p. m. the long lines formed in imposing platoons and, preceded by the Weccacoe band, went through a very handsome drill. Thousands of people were gathered on the hillsides looking down at the 1200 or 1500 soldiers moving with such regularity and precision. The effect was strikingly grand. After the parade was over hundreds of people left the ground, but their places were filled by other hundreds arriving who listened to a concert rendered by the Weccacoe Band.

When the encampment was formed in line of parade on Sunday evening, one of commanding officers read the following general order in a loud tone of voice:

HEADQARTERS DEP'T OF PENN'A,
GRAND ARMY OF THE REPUBLIC,
CAMP CURTIN,
BELLEFONTE, PA. Aug. 16, 1884.

GENERAL ORDERS No. 1.

1. COMRADES: Again we meet in Semi-Annual Encampment for a week of fraternal re-union and pleasure.

The Department officers and the local committee of the Grand Army of the Republic have left nothing undone that would contribute to your convenience and comfort; and the success of the encampment is now dependent entirely upon each and every comrade who participates.

Let the conduct of every member of the Grand Army of the Republic, at all times and under all circumstances, be that of soldiers and gentlemen. Let no word be uttered or deed done that would cause regret to any one, and let all visitors to our camp be made welcome.

II. There will be dress parade every evening at 6:30, and every comrade is earnestly urged to participate in full uniform.

Open air concerts by band from 9 to 11 a. m. and 7 to 9 p. m.

Commanders of posts and officers in charge of detachments will report daily at 8 a. m. at Headquarters for instructions, etc.

Tattoo at 10 p. m. Taps at 11 p. m.

III. Detachments from posts on occasions of ceremony should consolidate and form a post, and choose an officer to take command of same.

Heavy bonds have been given for the care and safe return of the canvas, and comrades are requested not to deface or mark them in any manner.

All the canvas will be needed to accommodate comrades, and no straw should be taken from vacant tents or the tents occupied; disregard of this request will cause discomfort and annoyance to comrades arriving late.

Each company street should be properly policed each morning, and the camp and vicinity should be kept scrupulously free from any nuisance.

While there is no disposition whatever to restrain the comrades in their sport, it is to be hoped that no comrade will be disturbed after he has retired. It should be borne in mind that there are many who join with us in our Semi-Annual Encampment whose systems are drained by the exhaustion of wounds or disease contracted in the service, and who should receive our kindest consideration and care.

Let every comrade feel that upon him rests the responsibility of making the encampment a success, and let all labor earnestly to that end. Discreditable acts on the part of individuals will reflect injuriously upon all.

By command of F. H. DYER, Department Commander.

THOS. J. STEWART,
Ass't Adj't General.

President Judge.

The Republicans in Huntingdon county on Tuesday, presented the name of K. Allen Lovell, Esq., as their choice for President Judge of the 49th district. Centre county Republicans on Thursday presented the name of A. O. Furst, Esq. We hope that when the district conference meets Mr. Furst will be chosen as the district nominee. He will command a large vote in this county and his reputation as a lawyer extends throughout the district. Living at the home of Judge Hoy, the Democratic nominee, he will be better able to carry on an active canvass. We recommend these considerations to the conference.

—One of the most charming concerts that took place on Sunday was that given on Sunday morning by the Philipsburg Cornet Band in front of the Garman House. Involuntarily, people paused to listen to the sweet strains of sacred music from the instruments used by these excellent musicians.

—There is no such thing as imposing on Mr. R. A. Beck, the tonsorial artist. A man who has an eye for enormous gains from the encampment began the erection of a frame structure in front of his establishment. But Beck, like the youthful "Father of his country," seized his hatchet and threatened to knock the building down as fast as it was built. The structure wasn't erected there, but may be found on the other side of the street.

—Among the G. A. R. men in town are H. T. Goodling and W. I. Resinger, of York, Pa. They are friends of Mr William Jones.

—Artist Finkbinder has a new and very beautiful group of photographs in front of his gallery on Allegheny St.

—The 5:45 a. m. train Saturday consisted of ten cars and brought many people to this place.

—Fruit is abundant.

LADIES' MEDICAL ADVISOR.—A complete Medical Work for Women, handsomely bound in cloth and illustrated; postpaid for 10 two-cent stamps. Tells how to prevent and cure all diseases of the sex, by a treatment at home. Worth its weight in gold to every lady suffering from any of these diseases. Over 10,000 sold already. Address, NUNDA PUBLISHING Co., Nunda, N. Y. 16 30 3m

—The game of base ball on Saturday afternoon between the Bellefonte and Mill Hall nines resulted in a triumph for the former by a score of 10 to 8. The game was an interesting one. The new pitcher, Mr. Martin, was exceedingly effective. The catcher was so unfortunate as to injure his hand during the first inning and his place was filled by Garrett.

HUMAN BLOOD.—On the purity and vitality of the blood depend the vigor and health of the whole system. Disease of various kinds is often only the sign that nature is trying to remove the disturbing cause. A remedy that gives life and vigor to the blood, eradicates scrofula and other impurities from it, as Hood's Sarsaparilla undoubtedly does, must be the means of preventing many diseases that would occur without its use. Sold by dealers.

Lines from Loveville.

LOVEVILLE, Aug. 14, 1884.

This place was visited by quite a severe thunder storm accompanied by hail last Saturday night.

"Grandma" Ebbs, a very aged lady of this place, has been quite seriously indisposed for some time past.

Almost with the precision and regulation of time are Daniel Rhoad's weekly visits to Loveville.

Ice cream parties still retain their attraction around here notwithstanding the approach of cool nights.

The farmers in this vicinity are at present enduring a state of perplexity. They can get no one to do their threshing unless they return to horse-power.

Frank S. and Joseph Rhoads leave for Bellefonte this morning. They intend driving down. The trip we predict will be a pleasant one to Frank with "Old Bill" to drive and the scenery in its greatest beauty.

I think we shall claim the Loveville gardens as very good vegetable producers, for the reason that we measured a cabbage leaf in one with the stupendous dimensions of 2 feet 4 inches by 1 foot 11 inches—then we didn't stretch it, either. Imagine the size of the head, please.

Confound the flies! There's one in my ink-stand.

There is an old and oft-repeated saying that continued effort will in due time reap its reward. The above can be verified by Mr. Wm. Cupp. For one year past he has laid seige to a large night owl, but last week he brought the seige to a close by killing the owl and he says with only one shot, too—though he at one time fired eleven shots at the bird and did not touch a feather. Its dimensions are three feet from tip to tip of wings.

The soldier boys came marching home from the encampment at Gettysburg on Saturday night last. They were quite enthusiastic in regard to the scenes they beheld, describing the attractions seen and heard so vividly as to almost lead the listener to imagine himself there. The beauty of the country in that vicinity they pictured in glowing terms. But we wonder if any of them, while viewing the historic field, examining the spot where brave Gen. Reynolds met his death, viewing that stone wall that protected the Union lives so well and before which there was such a terrible slaughter of the "rebs,"—we wonder, we say, if there wasn't one thus occupied who imagined himself drawn up to receive the "Johnnies." But it is well not to wonder too loud lest they think we have overheard them. Suffice to say, we had the pleasure of seeing some relics that were brought home by a "brave soldier laddie."

But once more I am, WEB.

G. A. R. Notes.

About 2,000 people came from Philadelphia and Pittsburg on the 10 a. m. train on Saturday.

The explosions made by the festive soldiers as the cars drew in at the station were quite terrifying.

The Lock Haven Post and several hundred citizens of that city arrived on a special train at 1:30 o'clock, Some of the citizens will return to Lock Haven this evening.

The Weccacoe band, of Philadelphia, arrived on Saturday and will render music on the camp ground.

Among the distinguished G. A. R. men here are Gen. Elliot, of Everett, Bedford Co., Dept. Com. Dyer; Past Dept. Commander Tyson, of Pittsburg and Medical Director of the U. S. Army, Dr. Hall.

The Posts from Pittsburg are Nos. 88, 155 and 151; from Sharpsville Mercer Co., Nos. 237, 230, 157 and 41; from Burgettstown, W. S. Bradley Post, 286; from Philipsburg, John W. Geary Post 90; from Houtzdale, Kincaid Post 296; from Huntingdon, Geo. Simpson Post, 44; from Clearfield, Larimer Post, 79; from Philadelphia (cannon) Schuyler Post, 51; from Tyrone, D. M. Jones Post, 172; from York, Gen. Jno. Sedgwig Post, 37; from Altoona, Post 62; from Bellwood, Post 426; from Clarion, Post 205; from Coatesville, 54; from Gettysburg, Post 9.

Logansville, Lock Haven and several other Posts arrived at 1:30 o'clock.

THE evidences of strength which the Republicans are showing in West Virginia are filling the Democrats of that hitherto Bourbon stronghold with general alarm. They begin to talk about conspiracy and the importation of negroes and threaten that not a negro vote shall be cast. The Republican party of West Virginia is not made up exclusively or mainly of negroes and will not easily be intimidated. There is a fair prospect that a full Republican vote will be cast next October in West Virginia, and, if cast, it will probably be counted.

THE prospects of Republican success become more hopeful daily.

Ringworm Humor and Salt-Rheum.

RAYNHAM, MASS., Aug. 12, 1878.

C. I. HOOD & CO.: Gentlemen— * * * * I have had ringworm humor and salt-rheum so badly that my body was covered with raw sores; so, also, my head and face. I have had any number of doctors in the last seven years, and none of them could cure me. One day my mother was in the city of Taunton, and found one of your cook books, and in reading it I found many people testifying to cures from the use of your Sarsaparilla and Olive Ointment. I felt forced to try it, although I had seen many things advertised that never did me any good. I have now taken two small bottles and one large one of Sarsaparilla, and used three boxes of Ointment. I now call myself cured. Nothing can be seen of the humor but the dim outlines of the sores. I shall take two more bottles, and then the cure will be complete.

I am gratefully yours,
EDGAR F. WHITMAN.

Biliousness, Sick Headache.

PITTSFIELD, MASS.

MESSRS. C. I. HOOD & CO.: Gents—Please send me by express two bottles HOOD'S SARSAPARILLA and a few Cook Books for distribution. Your preparation has worked wonders in the case of my wife, who has been troubled with sick headache and biliousness for years. She only took one-half teaspoonful at a dose, and has not been so well for five years as now. She found that within a week after taking it she felt very much better, and is now entirely free from those severe headaches. She has not taken any of any account since last spring, and what little she had is lent to do some others some good, and we must have it in the house.

Yours truly,
HOMER B. NASH.

SPICES.—The best cook in the land cannot cook successfully without pure, fresh spices. These we have in every variety. Well-seasoned food adds to long life and happiness.

SUGARS AND SYRUPS.—In Sugars and Syrups we have all the best brands in the market. Much of the sugar now sold is adulterated, and in an article of this kind there is great waste. We buy from reliable dealers, and handle only the genuine goods.

TEAS AND COFFEES.—No breakfast can be thoroughly enjoyed without a good cup of coffee or tea. A drink of this kind is stimulating and goes right to the spot. Our Coffees and Teas are fresh and strictly pure. The fragrant odor which escapes from the steaming pot as it comes in from the kitchen will convince you of this. We sell more coffee than any other two houses in the county. Why? Because we sell the best and the people know it.

NUTS, CONFECTIONERY, ETC.—In Nuts and Confectionery we have everything that is nice, and just what will please the young folks, and old folks as well. Our candies are all pure and wholesome; We do not handle the highly-colored, poisonous mixtures that ruin and decay the teeth. We have new Florida oranges (this fall's crop), fine Figs and Prunes, and a choice line of Canned Fruits and Preserves. Bear this in mind when preparing to Celebrate the merry holidays.

We make special mention of the above lines of goods because they are all leading articles at this season of the year. In other lines our stock is equally fresh and complete.

We buy the Best Goods and sell at the Lowest Figures.

Call in and inspect our No. 1 goods. Then you will know where to purchase when your cupboard needs replenishing.

General Logan's Travels.

HERKIMER, N. Y., August 12.—This has been a perfect day in Herkimer and General and Mrs. Logan have passed it most pleasantly. During the day, accompanied by Senator and Mrs. Miller, they drove to many points of interest in the beautiful Mohawk Valley, visiting, among others, the home of the famous General Spinner. In the evening the handsome parlors at Senator Miller's residence were thrown open and hundreds thronged there to greet the distinguished guests. The house was tastefully decorated for the occasion.

General Logan will leave Herkimer early on Thursday morning, reaching Utica at 8 o'clock, where a private car will be placed at his disposal. He will go direct to Watertown, where after a reception and speeches he expects to visit the Thousand Islands for a few hours, returning to Utica on Friday. Great preparations are being made to receive him there.

Then, after participating in the ceremonies he will take up his journey, next stopping for a few hours at Buffalo and Chautauqua. General Logan is looking his best, has entire confidence in the result of the election and naturally is much gratified at the cordial greeting he is receiving while journeying toward home through New York State.

A Young Heroine.

NEW YORK, August 10.—Among the residents of "Shantytown," a settlement of poor and indolent people on the rocks in the upper part of the city, is a 17-year-old girl, named Mary Heyburne, who, despite her youth, has already rescued a number of people from drowning, and is regarded as a sort of mascot by the people of the vicinity. Five years ago Mary jumped into the East River after a boy who had fallen overboard and she brought him safely to the shore. Since then she has rescued no less than six others, the last one being the wife of a canal boat captain, who fell from the boat about two months ago.

For this heroic act Mary received a life-saving medal from the public authorities. The young heroine says that she learned to swim in one of the public baths here when she was but 10 years of age, and, as she likes the water very much, a day seldom passes without her taking a swim. She says that she would be able to drag full-grown persons out of the water if they would not struggle and try to pull her down in their efforts to save themselves.

A Priest Celebrates His Jubilee.

CINCINNATI, August 12.—On Sunday last the Roman Catholic Church of St. John witnessed a ceremony the like of which it is doubtful if the history of Catholicism in this country records. Father Goebles, the venerable pastor of St. John's church Covington, celebrated the twenty-fifth anniversary of his elevation to the priesthood. His three sons, Fathers Bonaface, Benedict, and Joseph Goebles assisted him in the offering of the Mass, and his daughter, now a Sister of Notre Dame, was in the congregation. The venerable celebrant, who is in his 70th year, studied for the sacred office of the priesthood in early life but subsequently married. His wife died after twelve years of wedded life, and Father Goebles carried out his original vocation, his course in devoting his life to religion being approved of and his example followed by his entire family.

A Battle in China.

LONDON, August 12.—The Times' dispatch from Pekin, dated August 11, says Tseng Li Yaman has protested to the powers against the operation of the French fleet at Kee-Lung.

PARIS, August 12.—The Voltaire gives the following account of the French operations in China: Admiral Leshes blockaded Kee-Lung on August 15. The Chinese attempted to repel him with a battery of Krupp cannon. The French thereupon opened fire and silenced the battery without casualties.

A company was then landed and spiked the guns. In this operation one man was killed and two wounded. Admiral Leshes' remains at anchor before Kee-Lung, to prevent Chinese vessels coaling. Admiral Coubet stays at Foo-Chow to support Patenorte's demands. A detachment of the squadron remains at Woo-Sung, ten miles north of Shanghai.

Balloons in Warfare.

LONDON, August 12.—The use of balloons in European warfare dates from the last Franco-German war. They were then chiefly employed for the purpose of observation, signaling and escape from beleaguered towns. A German-American scheme of aerial warfare has been under the consideration of the War Office here, in which not only captive but free balloons are proposed to be utilized for aggressive operations. The inventors suggest the dropping of explosive bombs upon an enemy from balloons. In addition to this, by the use of captive balloons, the whole of the enemy's force may be observed, and his tactics easily deciphered and counteracted. It is understood that the forthcoming report will be favorable certainly as to part of the scheme, if not as to the whole.

A Consul in a Plague Spot.

WASHINGTON, August 12.—The United States Consul at Sierra Leon reports to the State Department that he has been compelled to leave the Consulate by the prevalence of a severe form of African fever prevailing there, and from which two of the 10 European residents have died since May 10.

Dr. Tanner's Theory.

NEW YORK, August 11.—Dr. Tanner, who sprang into notoriety through his celebrated forty days' fast has suddenly turned up in this city again, and is now engaged in disseminating his views on the influence of electricity as applied to cholera. He regards the presence of electricity in our atmosphere, as indicated by the numerous showers of late all over the country, as an assurance that we will not suffer from the presence of any epidemic disease, especially cholera, this summer. Dr. Tanner explains this theory as follows: Take coagulated or venous blood and strive to make norpuscles fluid and healthy in appearance with oxygen, and you will fail. Try the same experiment with electricity and you will succeed. Therefore I conclude that electricity the great vitalizer of our blood, being put in our atmospbere so abundantly guarantees us safety from all contagious diseases. During my fasts—one in Minnesota and one here—I noticed and was affected by the climate differences between the two sections of the country. Why, I would rather fast sixty days in Minnesota than forty here in New York.

Mrs. Langtry's Programme.

LONDON, August 10.—Mrs. Langtry, who arrived on the Arizona Sunday, has remained in London during the week completing her preparations for a provincial tour beginning at Newcastle on Monday, including Glasgow, Edinburg, Manchester, Liverpool, and other cities, ending in Birmingham in the middle of November. She regrets that she will probably be obliged to postpone her intended return to America until January. Rejecting several large proposals from London managers, she has about resolved to take a theatre in London and to play with her own company during a season of four months, producing the plays which met with the greatest success in America. She reports that her recent American tour yielded even more brilliant results than her first tour here. She also acknowledges the kindness of her American audiences, and agrees with Mr. Irving that the American public is equally intelligent, critical and amiable. She hopes to return in the autumn of next year.

The Publishers Win.

ALLENTOWN, August 11.—The suit brought by Everts & Richards, of Philadelphia, publishers of the History of Lehigh and Carbon Counties, against Henry L. Moyer, of this city, who subscribed for the work, but refused to take it on the ground that it was not what the compilers promised it should be, and that it failed to come up to his idea of what a history ought to be, has been decided by Alderman Jones in favor of the publishers. The decision affects a good many other cases brought by Everts & Richards against parties in this city who refused to take the history on the ground that their names had been signed to the subscription books under a misapprehension of the facts. There is talk of the sued parties combining and carrying a test case to court.

Too much Electricity.

LONDON, August 10.—The Autumn season of the promenade concerts, at Covent Garden Theatre, opened last night, when the whole of the auditorium was so densely crowded that circulation was impossible. Many of the boxes were also occupied. The performance was somewhat marred by the eccentric behavior of the electric lights, which exhibited a series of pyrotechnic displays not down in the programme. Some of the incandescent globes fell upon the heads of the audience, exploding like bombs, with a loud report, causing the women to scream and at one time threatening a panic. The large light roared, hissed and sputtered so as to seriously interfere with the enjoyment of the music.

Poet Whittier Hands in His Check.

BOSTON, August 11.—John G. Whittier, the poet, writes the following letter to republican headquarters: "As I do not know the name of the treasurer of your committee, will you hand him the enclosed check. I am not prepared to abandon republicanism and go over to a party whose principles and measures I have constantly opposed for the last quarter of a century. Trusting that the dear old commonwealth will give the usual majority for the republican ticket this fall, I remain truly thy friend,

JOHN G. WHITTIER."

Three Families Burned Out.

MIFFLINTOWN, Pa., August 10.—Yesterday morning, about 1 o'clock, a fire destroyed the dwellings of Benjamin Stine, William Coats and William Nankival, all under one roof of a house owned by John Robison, at the corner of Main and Juniata streets, in Patterson. The fire started in Coat's kitchen. The families saved little else than their bodies from the flames. There was no insurance on the building or contents. The Patterson firemen confined the flames to the burning building.

Killed Her for Revenge.

RICHMOND, Va., August 13.—John Butler, a farmer residing in Hanover county, about twelve miles from Richmond, shot his wife fatally yesterday. He had been beating one of the children, when, his wife interfering, he shot his wife in the head, inflicting a wound from which she will die. Butler was arrested and is now in Hanover county jail.

Patriotic Order Sons of America

HARRISBURG, August 11.—The nineteenth annual session of the State Camp of Pennsylvania of the Patriotic Order Sons of America, will assemble in the House of Representatives to-morrow morning. A large number of delegetes have already arrived, and it is believed that this will be one of the largest State conventions ever held by this order. If each subordinate camp will send its representatives, there will be 400 votes in the Convention. Questions of great interest to the order in Pennsylvania will continue until Thursday. Among the prominent workers of the order who are present are: National President R. Peterson, National Vice-President Smith, of Colorado; Colonel H. T. Ellis, of Indiana; Hon. C. N. Brumm, J. H. Hoffer, Ike S. Smith, Colonel E. Z. C. Judson.

Frightful Death.

STROUDSBURG, Pa., August 11.—A landslide occurred on the New York, Susquehanna and Western Railroad at Bell's bridge, near here, this morning, just before an east-bound loaded coal train was due. The engine dashed into the mass of rock and earth and a terrible wreck followed. The engineer, Henry Post, was instantly killed, his body being frightfully mangled. One of his legs was not found until this afternoon. He leaves a wife and three children. John Cortwright, the fireman, was very badly injured, but may recover. A large force of men are at work at the wreck and will probably have the track clear by to-morrow morning after working all day.

Boston's Wholesale Whisky Failure.

BOSTON, August 12.—The creditors of Altman, Demelan & Fuchs, wholesale liquor dealers, held a meeting yesterday, at which it was stated that the liabilities were $74,000; the nominal assets, $1,000. M. H. Schwarzenberg, special partner, had, it is claimed, withdrawn his capital of $15,000 through an endorsement received from the firm, and the firm claim their failure was due to this action. The heaviest creditors are Frieberg & Workum, of Cincinnati, for $10,000. A committee was appointed to investigate the firm's affairs.

Dr. Ball Sues the Boston "Herald."

BOSTON, August 11.—Rev. Dr. Ball, of Buffalo, who has gained some notoriety in connection with the Buffalo scandal, is in this city and has begun a suit against the Herald for libel, laying the damages at $25,000. The alleged libel is contained in a dispatch from Louisville, Ky., printed in the Sunday Herald, which said Ball used to live down in Gleason county, Indiana, from whom he filched money under various pretences. He finally became noted over the country as a great liar and one in whom no trust could be placed.

Logic on Honest Finds.

Arkansaw Traveller.

"Whar'd yer git dat hatchet?" asked an old negro of his son.

"Found it in Mr. Johnson's yard on er stump."

"Dat's all right, den, chile. I war afeerd dat yer'd stol'd it. Allus be kereful how yer pick up things what doan' 'long ter yer, but when yer finds er thing, lessen de owner is er lookin' at yer, it's your'n."

"Darling, I love you!" he exclaimed. "I don't believe it," was the scornful reply. "You haven't treated me to ice-cream but twice since our acquaintance began." And he had only met her the evening before.

ADVICE TO MOTHERS.

Are you disturbed at night and broken of your rest by a sick child suffering and crying with pain of cutting teeth! If so, send at once and get a bottle of Mrs. Winslow's Soothing Syrup for Children Teething. Its value is incalculable. It will relieve the poor little sufferer immediately Depend upon it, mothers, there is no mistake about it. It cures dysentery and diarrhoea, regulates the stomach and bowels, cures wind colic, softens the gums, reduces inflammation, and gives tone and energy to the whole system. Mrs. Winslow's Soothing Syrup for Children Teething is pleasant to the taste, and is the prescription of one of the oldest and best female nurses and physicians in the United States, and is for sale by all druggists throughout the world. Price 25 cents a bottle. may18 1y

That the Indians are year by year becoming more accustomed to civilized ways, and are discarding many of their old superstitious customs, is an encouraging fact. Especially is this observable on the reservation, where the children of both sexes show themselves as good students in the schools, and where the enlightened ideas of the young people do not fail of good effect upon their elders. The entertainments given by the Indian children in the towns contiguous to the reservations in California and Oregon are highly commended by the press of those States as proving the great progress which they have made in education from books and in manual work.

Itching Piles—Symptoms and Cure.

The symptoms are moisture, like perspiration, intense itching, increased by scratching; very distressing, particularly at night; seems as if pinworms were crawling in and about the rectum; the private parts are sometimes affected. If allowed to continue very serious results may follow. "SWAYNE'S OINTMENT" is a pleasant, sure cure. Also, for tetter, itch, salt rheum, scald-head, erysipelas, barbers' itch, blotches, all scaly, crusty skin diseases. Box, by mail, 50 cts.; 3 for $1.25. Address, DR. SWAYNE & SON, Phila., Pa. Sold by druggists. may6 1y

Noticing three boys stagger into the open door of a Boston rum shop, we inquired of a policeman who was watching the performance, what were his instructions in such cases. "Let 'em alone," was his short and prompt answer; and in justification, he remarked, "we see that sort of thing all the while."

Why they Call Him "Old Man."

"Yes, that's sadly so," said Jenkins, "my hair is turning gray and falling out before its time. Use something? I would, but most hair restorers are dangerous." "True," answered his wife, "but Parker's Hair Balsam is as harmless as it is effective. I've tried it, and know. Give the Balsam a show and the boys will soon stop calling you 'Old Man Jenkins.'" It never fails to restore the original color to gray or faded hair. Richly perfumed, an elegant dressing.

"The enterprising firm of Hood & Co. are doing a rushing business in Hood's Sarsaparilla and Hood's Tooth Powder, both well known and appreciated by the thousands who have tested their efficacy. The Sarsaparilla has effected wonderful cures, not only in this city, but in various parts of New England, where its merits are known."—Ed. Lowell Daily Citizen.

Young man (to druggist)—"I want to get some arnica, Russian salve, carbolic acid, Empress Relief, Davis' pain-killer, and a package of sticking-plaster." Druggist—"All right, sir, all right. Anybody got hurt?" "Oh, no; I've just bought a bicycle."

"Familiarity," says an exchange, "does not always breed contempt. For instance, there is the girl and the ice cream." True; but you don't know anything about the ice-cream's opinion of the girl.

—The G. A. R. are erecting a very beautiful arch over the High street bridge.

—A communication on the subject of "Dancing" appears elsewhere in this issue of the REPUBLICAN.

—Mr. Guggenheimer is beautifying the exterior of his residence on High street with fresh paint.

—The largest market we have ever seen gathered around the curb was that of Tuesday morning, the 18th;

—Francis Speer held down the railing in the court house on Tuesday and seemed to oe very well pleased.

—Those wicked G. A. R. men tore down the high board back stop used by the base ballists on the Fair ground.

—Mr. Baker, one of the employes in the Sun and Banner office in Williamsport, and at one time a resident of Bellefonte, is visiting his brother in this place.

—The Lock Haven base ball nine and the Resolutes of Renovo played a game in the former place on Monday, August 11. Score, 4 to 2 in favor of Lock Haven.

—Mr. Hall, of Milesburg, who was injured in the freight wreck at Vail Station on Tuesday evening, was brought to this place on the construction train last night.

—Ex-Sheriff Woodring is always attracted to town when an event of more than ordinary interest transpires and was of course visible in Bellefonte on the 12th.

—The population of Philipsburg received accessions last week. The new-comers are not peculiarly welcome, however, being Swedes and Hungarians to work on the new railroad.

—J. P. Rynder, of Milesburg, who has posed before the Commonwealth in the capacity of a Greenback politician in recent years, was an interested spectator in the convention on Tuesday.

—The Association Base Ball Nine have secured an excellent battery from Philadelphia, who will play with them in future games. They are Chas. B. Martin, pitcher, and Mr. Annear, catcher.

—Harper run well for a third term, and he apparently believes he secured the nomination and the correct ballot should read 42 to 41 in his favor. That Snow Shoe delegate voted contrary to instructions.

—Mr. Henry Reeser, an esteemed and quite venerable resident of Buffalo Run, died on Sunday morning, August 10, and was buried Tueday, the 12th, being followed to the grave by quite a large company of mourning friends and acquaintances.

—A serious freight wreck occurred on the railroad near Vail Station on Tuesday afternoon, thirty-five cars being piled on top of one another. Two of the employes on the train were seriously injured and the passenger trains on the Bald Eagle R. R. were delayed.

—Even Lock Haven was slightly shaken by that earthquake on Sunday, the 10th. Bellefonte seems to have been about the only town exempt from its agitating influences. P. S.—Since the above was written we have heard that several persons in Bellefonte felt slight earthquake sensations on Sunday afternoon and it is probably because our reporter, at the time, was in the land of dreams that it was not perceptible to him.

—The funeral of Mr. John R. Baker, of Howard, occurred Tuesday, the 12th. His death took place on Sunday. Mr. Baker was an ex-soldier and during the Rebellion was a member of Company D, 45th Regt., Pa. Vols. We believe he was also a member of the Howard Post. We do not know his exact age, but it was about 60 years. Several Bellefonte friends attended the funeral. Deceased was a brother-in-law of Capt. R. C. Cheesman, of Washington, D. C.

—Mr. Linn Harris, son of John P. Harris, Esq., who is visiting at home, having a vacation from his business employment in St. Louis, entertained a party of twenty of his friends at his father's home on Monday evening, the 11th. The company included many of the young folks now visiting in Bellefonte together with a few of his most intimate friends. Music of a very excellent description was rendered, refreshments were served and dancing was participated in until 11:30 p. m. when the pleasant affair ended.

DEMOCRACY'S DAY.

HOY, CURTIN, MUNSON, WOODWARD AND RHONE, WALKER, BRETT, SMITH MCCLAIN, BIBLE, GRIEST AND WOLF, PECK AND DINGES NOMINATED FOR OFFICE.

HOW THE WORK WAS ACCOMPLISHED.

Tuesday, August 12, was as perfect a day as e'er the sun shone on. The mist melted before the rays of Old Sol in the early morning and the skies above smiled in that pleasant way that inspires the wayfarer to exchange his old faded umbrella for a cane. All day long that angel on the fountain turned her back upon the Court House and very few of the great crowds of people who were in town stopped to drink of the liquid she offered for their refreshment. At 2 o'clock p. m. the crowds of men who, during the day had occupied all the available corners and steps in town, filed promiscuously into the Court House, eager to participate in the annual Democratic privilege of naming candidates for county offices. Here let us reflect—

It is plain to see that the average Democrat has an abiding faith that his candidate for a county office will be elected, while he has not believed at any time that the State or National ticket will be elected this year. The very small attendence at the ratification meeting some time ago as well as the quite large attendance at Tuesday's convention illustrate and enforce this. The Court House on Tuesday was crowded. To be sure, there were many Republicans in the assemblage, but the number of Democrats present was, perhaps, larger than usual. The afternoon was warm outside, but it was hot inside the Court House.

The preliminary proceedings of the convention were rushed through without ceremony and when our reporter entered the sacred hall of justice at 2:30 p. m. considerable work had been accomplished. J. L. Spangler, Esq., who by the way is the only enthusiastic Democrat in Centre county this year, was presiding as chairman of the convention. It is apparent that the Democrats have adopted the suggestion made recently by the NEWS to imbibe their enthusiasm for the National ticket from Spangler, and for that reason made him the chairman. At his left sat 'Squire Gephart, while we do not know the name of the individual who occupied the nicely upholstered chair at his right.

We were told that Judge Adam Hoy had already received the nomination for President Judge; Hon. Andrew G. Curtin the nomination for Congress and Hon. Chester Munson, of Philipsburg, the nomination for Associate Judge, the opposing candidates for the later nomination being that venerable and life-long Democrat Robert McKnight, of Fillmore, who has been an unsuccessful aspirant for the nomination on several previous occasions, and the almost equally venerable Joseph J. Lingle, whose claims for office are certainly just as great as those of Mr. Munson. But then Mr. Munson is considered to be one of the best-looking men in the Democratic party of Centre and was probably nominated on that score.

Then the fight began and about a half-dozen names were put in nomination for Assembly. Among them were the following: Hon. C. T. Alexander, of Bellefonte; Frederick Kurtz, of Potter township; John A. Woodward, of Howard; Leonard Rhone, of Potter township; D. F. Taylor, of College township; B. F. Hunter, of Benner township, and Dr. Philip S. Fisher. Mr. John A. Woodward was nominated on the first ballot and then six ballots were taken before the second candidate could be chosen, when the Worthy Master of the State Grange, Leonard Rhone, of Potter township, bore away the prize. Mr. Alexander moved that Mr. Rhone's nomination be made unanimous, but this was unfortunate, for quite a chorus of "Nos" were heard in all directions.

Another scramble followed and that was for the very remunerative office of Sheriff, for which four candidates were named, the principal contest being between Miles Walker, of Ferguson township, and Samuel K. Faust, of Miles township. These rivals were a tie on the third ballot; on the fourth Faust received 30 and Walker 29, but on the fifth ballot Walker scored a decisive victory by getting 46 ballots to only 37 for Faust.

The most bitter fight of the convention was between the three candidates for the office of Prothonotary: J. C. Harper, of this place; W. B. Mingle, of Potter township, and Robert G. Brett, of Ferguson township. Five ballots were taken before a choice was made. The second gave gave Harper 30, Mingle 25, and Brett 29. The 3d ballot gave Harper 31 and Mingle and Brett 26 each. The 4th ballot resulted Harper 30, Mingle 26, Brett 27. Mingle retiring, left the contest between Brett and Harper and 5th ballot was Brett 44, Harper 39. When this result was accomplished Democracy expanded its lungs to its widest limit and a wild yell made the rafters shake like an earthquake.

Then there was comparatively smooth sailing and the contest for county treasurer quickly resulted in favor of Mr. Chas. Smith, of this place.

Mr. Jas. A. McClain went through with a whoop for Register and Frank E. Bible was nominated for Recorder.

For commissioners there were five nominations—John Wolf, of Miles; A. J. Griest, of Unionville; Joseph Gates, of Ferguson; Jacob P. Shope, of Milesburg; and John M. Furey, of Spring. Furey and Shope were withdrawn before the first ballot was taken and in the first race Gates was badly distanced, Griest and Wolf receiving the nomination.

County Auditors were nominated after our reporter departed, Messrs. R. F. Peck and J. I. Dinges being chosen. Resolutions were adopted at an early hour of the convention, which we suppose followed the stereotyped form of such meaningless expressions of the party creed.

Following is a resolution adopted by the convention in reference to Hon. A. G. Curtin, the nominee for Congress:

WHEREAS, In presenting the name of Hon. A. G. Curtin to the voters of the Twentieth Congressional district, Centre county offers a man who for a quarter of a century has worked untiringly for the interest of Pennsylvania and the Union; who, in the darkest days of the Nation's life, was a bulwark of defense and a tower of strength; in whom the soldier has ever found a friend, his orphan a father and his widow a protector. That in him we recognize a true friend of the workingman, and a wise conservator of the business interests of the country. That his course in Congress has always been in harmony with true Democracy as expounded by Jefferson, Madison and Jackson. That his speech on the Backbone Railroad Land grant bill raised a great question that must be met and decided in this campaign. Millions of acres for the people not a foot for monopolists is his motto. Therefore, be it

Resolved, That Ex-Gov. Curtin, having thus far faithfully and efficiently discharged the high trusts committed to his keeping, it is the unanimous opinion of this convention that the interests of the industrial and business classes of this congressional district demand his continuance in the councils of the nation.

Resolved, That Gen. Wm. H. Blair, Dr. J. O. Lorain and L. T. Munson, Esq., are hereby elected congressional conferees, with instructions to use all fair and honorable means to secure the nomination of Ex-Gov. Curtin.

Heat and Light.

Practical operations at the works of the Steam Heating Company have been in progress about seven months and as the Company seem to be forging ahead rapidly, making arrangements for next winter, a reporter stepped into their office the other day to make inquiries for such information as may be interesting. Mr. Chase, fortunately, was in and was willing as usual to give facts and figures. He surprised the reporter when he stated that the company employs about 30 men at a weekly pay roll of between $200 and $300. He also showed figures to prove that during the past seven months the Company have expended about $17,000 in this community.

When steam was first turned on the street mains in January last there were 23 consumers, and no word of complaint has been heard, but all are well satisfied. The period during which the heat was tried by these consumers was the most severe experienced here for many years.

In fact, steam heat is working its own way forward, and to enable the company to fill its contracts four additional workmen were enrolled on Monday morning, the 11th. He has fourteen contracts waiting which he has not yet been able to touch, and those who contemplate introducing steam heat this season will certainly be left out in the cold unless all contracts are signed by the first of September, as Mr. Chase does not intend to put in any service pipes after turning on steam. Before cold weather begins there will be between 80 and 100 consumers.

The gas works are also under Mr. Chase's supervision and he explained to the reporter certain improvements which had recently been made in its manufacture. It is being utilized quite extensively is a comparatively new way in Bellefonte and that is for cooking purposes, with gas cook stoves, which are exceedingly convenient. Those who are using these stoves are loud in their praises of them.

—At a regular meeting of the Borough School Board on Tesday evening, the 12th it was determined to open the schools on Wednesday, September 3. Teachers who have not yet signed the agreements with the Board are requested to do so before the date for opening the schools.

Stormstown Sensations.—A Bellefonte Party in that Vicinity.

STORMSTOWN, Aug. 9, 1884.

MR. EDITOR: We have had abundance of rain, causing potatoes to grow and reducing the price of those popular tubers.

The corn is short in stalk, but will ear well.

Work was temporarily stopped by the breaking of a shaft in one of the ore washers at Juniata Mines on Saturday morning. A new one was substituted and work will at once be resumed.

Two accidents occurred at the mines the other day. Franklin Gage and George M: Wike were the victims. They were caught between the cars, one receiving a sprained back and the other a sprained ankle

Our friend, Mr. John P. Roop, has a dog which is remarkably fond of mutton. But he cured him of the habit by using his double-barreled Winchester. It never fails.

A party from Bellefonte consisting of Mr. T. R. Reynolds and lady, J. L. Spangler, Esq., and lady, and Mr. J. Pierpoint and lady came here on Monday, August 4, to picnic in the grove near the mines. Mr. Pierpoint, superintendent of the mines, left nothing undone which he could do for the enjoyment of his guests. He run a special train from the machines to the bank. The train had none of the old-fashioned sleeping coaches or parlor cars attached, but consisted of two new-fashioned cars and an engine. The cars are what are known as "sit-ups," and Mr. Spangler illustrated their great convenience by sitting up on a store box in the rear car, Mr. Pierpoint and lady occupied the front car while Mr. and Mrs. Reynolds took charge of the fireman's box on the engine. After surveying all the interesting objects of this vicinity they departed in the evening for Bellefonte. "Cob" extends to them an invitation to call again.

The Sunday-school at the mines will be closed on Sunday, the 17th, because of two other interesting gatherings—a camp meeting and the G. A. R. encampment in Bellefonte.

Superintendent Pierpoint has connected his works with the rest of the business world by telephone. This will add greatly to his satisfaction as he can find out how things are moving along when he don't happen to be here.

Since the works at Scotia stopped the population there has been increased by another Blaine vote in the family of Durbin Wry.

Henry Brindle journeyed toward Gatesburg the other evening in quest of potatoes, and Tom Carothers says he took a two gallon jug along to bring them in. He met with several amusing adventures on the homeward journey and it is said that he once found the rear wheels of his conveyance where the front wheels ought to be and vice versa. But perhaps Tom is just in fun about that jug. A man must have potatoes, you know. COB.

How a Birthday was Celebrated.

The gayety of the season pervades not only Bellefonte but also about all of Centre county. On the evening of Wednesday, August 6, a most delightful event occurred at the home of Mr. Henry Kline, one mile west of State College, it being the —— anniversary of the birth of his daughter, Miss Jennie Kline. Her friends assembled in large numbers bringing with them numerous handsome and costly gifts, including quite a variety of glassware. Mr. Andrew W.—, Miss E. K.'s most intimate friend, was the chief musician, and sang several humorous songs. After an excellent supper had been partaken of the party adjourned to the dancing floor where, under the inspiring music rendered by the Pine Hall Orchestra, the dance was indulged in quite merrily until a late hour. The above affords only an idea of the really grand affair; perhaps more can be elicited by consulting A. W. F.

ERASTUS.

—On Saturday morning, August 9, about 9 o'clock, another of those fires occurred at Stormstown which are so common this season. The stable belonging to W. S. Gray was burned to the ground. The fire started while the owner was endeavoring to burn chicken lice and instead of using burning sulphur as has heretofore been done in such instances he saturated a rag with kerosene and attached it to the end of a stick and thus pursued the pestiferous enemies of the barnyard fowl. The stable soon went up in a big blaze. Our only commentary is that this is the fourth stable that has been burned this year in this same way. It accomplishes the object of ridding the premises of chicken lice quiet effectually, but it is somewhat hard on the premises.

—The Scientific American and Supplement are now received regularly in the Y. M. C. A. reading rooms. They will be exceedingly interesting to many young men engaged in the mechanical arts and all are invited to peruse them.

"Ladies."

Ladies in a delicate condition find that they derive great benefit from Speer's port wine. It has become the most popular wine made for the use of aged and debilitated persons. It is also used as a communion wine. For sale by druggists.

Wife: "Oh, by the way, George, I had Featherplume make out his little account against me to-day and send it up. Did you foot the bill?" Husband (savagely): "No, I didn't! —I footed the man that brought it."

Never neglect a constipated condition of the bowels, or serious results surely follow, such as piles, impure blood and many chronic complaints. Burdock Blood Bitters is the remedy.

Professor Proctor says the earth is still in her youth. That explains why she goes around so much and is out so late of nights.

The warmer weather often has a depressing and debilitating effect. Hood's Sarsaparilla overcomes all languor and lassitude.

Terms, $2.00 per annum in Advance

Local Department.

—A. W. F. MacCollin has severed his connection with the Wilbur Opera Company.

—Over five hundred tents have arrived and have been placed in position on the Fair ground.

—Misses Sue and Jessie Little, of Pottsville, are the guests of Miss Mary Morris, at the home of Miss M's aunts, the Misses Benner, on High street.

—A three-months-old child of Mr. Sailor, of the Steam Heating Works, died during the early part of the week and was buried on Thursday.

—Mr. Joshua Foulk's drum corps which practices on Half Moon hill, has acquired great proficiency and is ready to fall in line in front of any big parade and play with the best of them.

—The telephone company extended their wires to camp Saturday morning and now the headquarters and the boarding tent on the camp ground are in communication with the town.

—Hicks & Griffith are rushing business at a high tension at their machine shops. The finishing touches are now being put on the 2,000 seed drill regulators which they are manufacturing.

—Some unhung wretches, last night, tore down several flags placed in front of Powers & Son's shoe store. Ed Powers offers a reward of $5 for the discovery of the identity of these villians. Ed means business, too.

—The off-set in the pavement between the Watchman office and Heisler's restaurant has been remedied by the laying of a new coal-tar pavement in front of the establishment. Both pavement are now first-class.

—Miss Nora I. Brugger, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Samuel Brugger, of Unionville, was united in marriage Thursday evening to Mr. W. F. Beeker. The ceremony was solemnized in the presence of 150 people. J. A. Woodcock officiated.

—The Blaine and Logan Club of Howard, will hold a mass ratification meeting on Saturday evening, the 23d, to which all, especially Democrats, are invited. John G. Love, Esq., and other able speakers, will be present.

—Gen. James A. Beaver, accompanied by his three sons, returned on Friday evening from a tour through a large part of the State. They started before the National Guard encampment at Gettysburg, going by carriage to that place, and since then have been continuing their trip until the time stated.

—The base ball game at Lock Haven on Friday afternoon between the nine of that city and the Williamsport nine resulted in a score of 5 to 2 in favor of Williamsport. Ten car loads of people from the latter city were present and quite a riot prevailed between the contending factions.

—The enterprise of our inhabitants will not be permitted to languish in at least one direction. At every corner stalls are being erected from which refreshments will be vended. Lemonade, peanuts, fruit, gingerbread, etc., will, we presume, be the articles offered for sale and if the crowds prove to be a success somebody will be considerably richer.

—We are glad to hear that Mr. Jno. H. Swartz, who lives about a half-mile from Abilene, Kansas, is delightfully situated. Mr. Swartz once resided on the Boalsburg pike near this place and is well and favorably known. Mrs. Israel Kauffman, a lady acquaintance of his near this place has received a beautiful photograph of his present home. It is a large white frame house with beautiful surroundings. Mr. Swartz has a large dairy with 30 first-class cows.

—A fair correspondent from Pine Glen thus relates the narrow escape made by some ladies at that place: "Last week we saw several ladies driving through Karthaus, among whom were Miss Hoover, of Unionville, and Miss Lucas, of Snow Shoe, and several fair ones from Pine Glen. When they drove across the railroad we don't know who was frightened the most, the ladies or the ponies When they saw the approaching train, the ladies leaped out of the carriage in great consternation. No casualty occurred, however, and soon all was right, and they soon pursued their way up the hill at a lively rate. We wont tell where they were bound for, but at about 12 o'clock they returned, chatting as if they thoroughly enjoyed themselves."

CONVENTION WORK.

The Remarkably Excellent Ticket Nominated by the Republicans on Thursday.

AN ENTHUSIASTIC AND HARMONIOUS CONVENTION.

The Republican county convention met in the Court House on Thursday afternoon at 2 o'clock, a full representation of the delegates elected being present. E. C. Humes, Esq., was elected chairman; Capt. James A. Quigley and G. H. Litchenthaler secretaries and A. A. Dale, Esq., reading clerk. On taking the chair, Mr. E. C. Humes delivered the following admirable speech:

GENTLEMEN OF THE CONVENTION:—It is not my intention, nor do I propose to detain you by making any extended remarks on this occasion.

Usage, however, seems to require, and it is proper, that I should tender my thanks for the honor you have conferred in selecting me as the chairman of this convention.

I am not aware that I possess any particular qualifications for the position, and I may be permitted to say that it is not of my own preference that I occupy it, as I very well know there is abundant material on the floor from which you could have made a much better selection.

In accordance with the usual custom of political parties, we are assembled for the purpose of expressing and comparing with reference to the choice of candidates for the several offices to be filled at the approaching election, and having been delegated by the respective boroughs and townships we represent to place in nomination suitable persons, it behooves us to exercise our best judgment in making a proper selection, having regard to the wishes of the people from whom we derive our authority and to whom we are responsible for our action.

The recent National Convention at Chicago has set us an example of unanimity and of adherence to the voice of the people, in the choice of the standard bearers of the Republican party, eminently worthy of our imitation and of the support of every citizen of the country whether native or foreign who is rightly disposed, and has its welfare at heart.

As a consequence, the result has occasioned a boom throughout the length and breadth of the entire land which no effort of the opposition can resist.

The names of Blaine and Logan have already become household words, and their triumphal election is an event than which none in the future can be more certain, notwithstanding all the exertions of the opposition to the contrary.

The one a statesman and the other a soldier, both of National reputation, of high character, marked ability and in every respect unexceptionable. And last, thought not least in importance, we have given us a platform of principles clear and positive, admitting of no misconstruction whatever, and "exclusively" for the benefit of all classes.

Our Democratic friends, who are quick observers, aware of the strength of our position, have taxed their ingenurity to evade the real issue by the introduction of another element, which seems to have been overlooked by the framers of the Republican platform, but which it would not be proper to ignore, particularly as it has been insisted upon with so much zeal, and that is the moral character of the candidates.

They profess to regard this as essential and hence it would be unwise in the Republicans to refuse to include it in their platform.

Let us then to-day present to our fellow citizens—Republicans, Democrats, Independent and Prohibitionists—for their suffrages, men who will, by their fitness, commend themselves for the several positions to be filled, and such as will be universally approved. When we shall have done this we shall have deserved, and will doubtless receive the approbration of our constituents, the people, by whom we have been delegated and whose mouthpiece we are for the time being.

Again I will express my profound thanks for this manifestation of your regard, and have only to say further that with your assistance, I shall endeaver to discharge the duties of the place you have assigned me to the best of my ability. We are now prepared to proceed to complete the organization of the convention.

A. O. Furst, Esq., was nominated for President Judge by acclamation.

For Associate Judge Bernard Lauth, Esq., of Howard; and Dr. C. P. W. Fisher, of Boalsburg, were named, the former gentleman being chosen by a vote of 47 to 42.

The name of John G. Love, Esq., was placed in nomination for assembly by James P. Coburn. William M. Allison, of Spring Mills, and E. I. Walker, of Boggs township, were also named. D. H. Hastings read a letter from Mr. Walker withdrawing that gentleman's name, and Messrs. Love and Allison were nominated by acclamation.

There were five names presented for Sheriff, viz: H. C. Royer, J. C. Hickland, Henry Robb, of Walker township, Major John Wolf, of Philipsburg, and Wm. B. Bitner, of Gregg township. A motion that after the third ballot the lowest candidate be dropped was carried. Four ballots were required for a choice, as follows:

	1	2	3	4
Wm. B. Bitner	—	—	—	—
Henry Robb	26	17	10	—
H. G. Royer	32	39	44	52
J. C. Hickland	11	—	—	—
J. A. Wolf	21	34	36	38

On motion of John I. Rankin, Esq., the nomination of Mr. H. G. Royer for Sheriff was made unanimous.

D. H. Hastings, Esq., presented the name of Mr. H. G. Elder, of Half Moon, for Prothonotary, and he was nominated by acclamation.

The nomination of Mr. Lewis Hess, of Philipsburg, for Treasurer, was accomplished in the same way.

For Register two names were put in nomination—J. C. Hickland, of Snow Shoe, and Wm. F. Foster, of College. The latter gentleman was nominated on the first ballot by a vote of 49 to 41, and his nomination made unanimous.

H. F. Chaney, of Worth township, was nominated by acclamation for Recorder.

For Commissioner four names were presented to the convention, viz: Henry C. Campbell, of Ferguson township; John C. Henderson, of Huston township; David Keller, of Boalsburg; and James Alexander, of Spring township. Messrs. Campbell and Henderson secured the nomination the ballot being as follows: Campbell 53, Henderson 61, Keller 43, Alexander 18.

George Taylor, of Boggs township, and S. H. Bennison, of Marion township, were nominated for county auditors by acclamation.

On motion, D. H. Hastings, and E. C. Humes, of Bellefonte, and Robert Lloyd, of Philipsburg, were appointed congressional conferees.

The ticket being completed, on motion, a committee of five was appointed to prepare resolutions. The committee, consisting of Major John A. Wolf, of Philipsburg, Alfred Lucas, of Snow Shoe; D. M. Bilger, of Rush township, G. A. Runk, of Gregg township, and Wm. H. Snyder, of Liberty township, retired to attend to the duties of their appointment.

Mr. John P. Harris was nominated by acclamation for chairman of the county committee, after which spirited addresses were made by John G. Love, A. O. Furst, and D. H. Hastings, Esqs., and James P. Coburn.

After a brief interval the committee on resolutions reappeared, the chairman of the committee reading the following:

The Republicans of Centre county, in convention assembled, do renew and reaffirm their allegiance to the principles of the Republican party, and do hereby resolve:

First, That we approve and endorse the wise and efficient administration of Chester A. Arthur, President of these United States, and we believe that his course as such executive commends itself to the world.

Second, That we most heartily concur in the sentiments and principles expressed in the platform promulgated by the Republican National Convention at Chicago.

Third, That the candidates named at Chicago—James G. Blaine and John A. Logan—are the representatives of broad statesmanship and manhood; that they are the candidates and choice of the people, and by the people they will be elected on the 4th of November next. We refer to the contrast between the party methods as illustrated in the spontaneous nomination of James G. Blaine by the people on the one hand, and that of Grover Cleveland on the other, which could be and was accomplished only by the enforcement of the odious unit rule, thereby depriving thousands of voters from expressing their choice.

Fourth, That we condemn the action of a Democratic Congress in tampering with the tariff; and to the Democratic party we charge the present depression in business as well as all the evils of the labor disturbances among us. We refer with pride to the uniform and consistent course of the Republican party in upholding the tariff; and we proclaim to all the land that the Republican party has protected and will protect American labor, American industries and American capital from foreign elements and from British Free-trade.

Fifth, That in the candidates this day named we present men of unblemished character, ability and integrity; and to them we pledge our full, hearty and undivided support.

ALFRED LUCAS,
D. M. BILGER,

Company B Banqueted.

Bellefonte was quite lively on Thursday evening, the principal event of interest being the military banquet given by C. G. McMillen, the proprietor of the New Brockerhoff House, to Company B, of which Mr. McMillen is a member. At an early hour that excellent musical organization, the Citizens' Cornet Band of Milesburg, arrived at the hotel and discoursed delightful music. A few minutes after 6 o'clock a beautiful flag was elevated to the top of a 35-foot pole above the cupola of the hotel where it displayed its bright bars and stars to the many eyes from below gazing at it in enthusiastic admiration. At about 8 o'clock the band escorted Company B to the Brockerhoff House, where the Company went through a few military manoeuvers, one of which, carrying Mr. McMillen across the street on their shoulders, is a very rare but interesting spectacle. The 8:55 o'clock train brought Asst.-Adjt. Gen. Stewart who attended the banquet, where also ex-Governor Curtin, D. H. Hastings, Esq., and other distinguished personages. The menu was exceedingly choice and elegant and was partaken of with infinite zest. Speeches were made by Hastings and Curtin, General Stewart recited "Snyder's Ride," which is a parody, we believe, on "Sheridan's Ride," and Mr. Geo. Bible recited a selection the title of which we have not learned. The entertainment was thoroughly enjoyable.

Encampment Notes.

A number of points of interest to the National Guard encampment are occasionally let slip by men who are in authority, and the Williamsport Sun and Banner gives the following: Before leaving Gettysburg Col. Black, of the Third United States Infantry, said that the regular United States troops would not have done better than the National Guard of Pennsylvania.

General Phil Sheridan, after reviewing the troops, said: "I have nothing to say of those troops but words of praise." He also gave the commander to understand that in case soldiers were ever needed over and above the regular force of the United States, Pennsylvania would be the first State called upon.

Many who visited the encampment thought the eatables and drinkables at general headquarters were paid out of the general treasury of the commonwealth, whereas everything was provided for out of the private funds of the officers.

The general good accomplished by the visit of the Secretary of War and commanding generals of the army was, in the conviction of the visiting parties, that all the infantry of Pennsylvania should be supplied with muskets similar in calibre to those used by regulars.

An effort will likely be made at the next session of the legislature to have each battery of artillery of the commonwealth supplied with two breach-loading rifle guns and two gattlings.

—Mr. J. C. Rumberger, the station agent at Unionville, was struck in the breast by the first section of the special train on Saturday and received quite serious injuries. P. S.—Since writing the above, we hear that Mr. Rumberger was struck on the back instead of the breast and that he was injured internally. He is said to be recovering.

—Delightful weather.

The "Rink" Opened.

On Friday evening the roller skating rink was opened under unusually favorable auspices. The Logan Hose Company, in uniform, and preceded by the Zion band, marched through the principal streets and out to the rink.

There was quite a large number of skaters gliding over the glassy surface. Dr. Geissinger, Will Auchenbach, E. J. Swavely, Cooper Dare, Linn Harris, Howard Lingle, Ellis Snyder, Thomas Newell, Jack Dale, W. W. Moyer, Walter Bayard, and many other gentlemen put on the skates and moved about with more or less grace or awkwardness. There were very few who didn't come in contact with the soft side of the floor with suddenness and violence, but hard knocks were taken with great good nature. Among the skaters Will Auchenbach was undeniably the best, while Walter Bayard showed considerable skill.

After 9 o'clock Manager McDougall introduced a young gentleman whom he called Prof. Malone, champion of the Northwest. The young gentleman was costumed in dark green silk knee breeches and waist, with a jacket of dark red silk and presented a striking appearance. He moved over the smooth surface very gracefully and seemingly without effort. He skated on his toes and on his heels and on only one foot; he danced on his skates. He went through a great variety of different figures, but unfortunately the heel came off of his shoe and he was unable to give many of his most brilliant feats. The latter part of the evening was spent in dancing.

The dance was opened at 10 o'clock, with a grand promenade in which 125 couples participated, led by Mr. William Hillibish and Miss Annie Hopkins.

The management was admirable, the committee having it in charge consisting of Michael Kelley, Edward Shrom and James Seibert.

The Logan Hose boys desire to express their thanks to Mr. McDougal for his courtesy to them and the many favors they received from him during the evening. The dance was ended at 2 o'clock while the pleasure was still at its height. All the proceedings were conducted with perfect order and decorum.

The number of spectators was very large and included some of the best people of the town. The rink will increase in popularity.

Pleasant Surprise Party.

One of the most enjoyable surprise parties ever given in this vicinity occurred last evening at the home of Postmaster Jno. T. Johnston, in honor of his son George, who had just attained his majority, and is now ready to fall in line for Blaine and Logan. So far as George is concerned the party was a complete surprise as he started out during the early part of the evening in quest of pleasure elsewhere. Being disappointed in an engagement which he expected to enjoy very much he was not in the most angelic state of mind, but when two friends accompanied him home at the proper hour and he saw a large company of his friends gathered there all clouds of disappointment were at once dissipated and he entered into the full enjoyment of the occasion. From his father and mother he received an elegant gold watch. Young's Orchestra of Lock Haven, was present and rendered very delightful music and refreshments of the choicest description were served. The affair ended at 2 o'clock a. m.

—The decorations which now render almost every business house and private residence attractive are all that can be desired and testify to the patriotism of our citizens. The banner suspended between the Bush House and the building just opposite, representing the welcome extended to visitors by the blue and the gray, is exceedingly interesting and appropriate. The arch across the bridge has been rendered more beautiful than ever by the addition of flags. The business houses in Bush Arcade building are bright with all kinds of beautiful decorations and those on Allegheny street are also very handsomely adorned with red, white and blue. A handsome banner across the street between Loeb's store and Hicks' hardware establishment attracts universal admiration.

—Mrs. Klinger, wife of Jesse Klinger, Esq., of this place, attained her 70th birthday on Wednesday and the occasion was celebrated by her husband, children and other close relatives in a very pleasant reunion at their home on High street. No events are more suitable of celebration than these milestones on one's pathway, and, in view of the interest which attaches to this occasion, we unite in wishing the good lady many more very pleasant anniversaries of her natal day.

Personal Pencilings.

Constable Olewine, of Philipsburg, is in Bellefonte last week.

Mr. Robert Mingle, of Philipsburg, is quite ill with typhoid fever.

Mr. James Hillibish, of Philipsburg, is visiting friends in town.

Miss Ellen Downing, of Philadelphia, is the guest of Mrs. Jacob Valentine.

Gen. Sheridan and family spent a few hours in Williamsport on Tuesday, the 12th.

Miss Mary Thomas is camping out with quite a large party in the vicinity of Clearfield.

Rev. W. H. H. Snyder and wife, of Harrisburg, are visiting their friend, Mrs. H. C. Weaver on Howard street.

Will Auchenbach came home from Williamsport on Monday, August 11, with his intimate friend, the bicycle.

Mr. William Andrews, of Williamsport, accompanied Will Auchenbach to this place on Monday of last week.

Miss Mary Macbride is entertaining two lady guests—Mrs. Gracy and Miss Harriet Hammond, both of Baltimore, Md.

Mr. Walter Bayard, of Philipsburg, arrived on the 9:45 a. m. train Friday and expects to remain until Saturday the 23d.

The Misses Devling, of this place, are entertaining their friends, Misses Minnie and Belle Young, of Philadelphia.

Mr. Levi Miller, representing the Commercial-Gazette of Pittsburg, is in town. He is a former resident of this county.

Mrs. Arthur Pearson, who has been spending the past month with friends in Lock Haven, returned home on Thursday afternoon.

Rev. J. B. Polsgrove, pastor of the M. E. church of Philipsburg, is the guest of his relative, Mr. Joseph Devling, on Howard street.

Mr. and Mrs. Q. A. Daniels of Williamsport, arrived in town on Thursday afternoon and expect to remain during the encampment.

Miss Grace Freck, of Millersburg, is the guest of her friend, Miss Jennie Pontius, daughter of H. B. Pontius of Curtin street.

John W. Smith, one of the Howard borough delegates to the Republican convention, favored the NEWS office with a call Thursday morning.

Miss Mattern, who presides over the destinies of the Telephone Exchange, returned on Monday evening, August 11, from a brief visit in Tyrone.

R. M. Magee, Esq., is the new chairman of the Democratic county committee. He is an able gentleman and will manage Democratic politics sagaciously.

Miss Birdie Kamp, of Lock Haven, who has been the guest of Mr. and Mrs. W. B. Rankin during the past week, departed for her home on Tuesday of last week.

Mr. Ellis L. Orvis started on Thursday afternoon with Col. Ed. Pruner on a tour half way around the world. They expect to return in three months, after visiting the Golden Pacific and probably Alaska.

Mr. C. B. Bush, who is said by the Philipsburg Ledger to reside near this place, gave some very admirable exhibitions of roller skating in the rink at Philipsburg the other evening. This is the first that we were aware of the existence of an expert roller skatist so near.

Miss Bessie Mann, of Lewistown, who has been a guest at the residence of J. Fearon Mann, was called home quite unexpectedly on Monday by the illness of her brother. Her numerous friends regret her departure as well as the event which occasioned it. Her cousin, Miss Charlotte Mann, will remain here for some time.

Attractions This Week.

Quite an array of distinguished gentlemen will be in Bellefonte during the G. A. R. encampment. While Major Austin Curtin was at Gettysburg he met Governor Pattison, who informed him that he expects to be able to give at least a part of one day to the encampment. He will go to Conneaut Lake on Thursday, the 21st., and will endeavor to stop in Bellefonte on the way to that place. Adjutant General Guthrie, who is a prominent Grand Army man, also informed Major Curtin of his intention to be in Bellefonte during the encampment. Gen. Beaver extended a personal and very cordial invitation to Gen. Hartranft to visit him at that time, which the ex-Governor accepted, if he can spare time from his duties at the Custom House. He will take pleasure in visiting the Grand Army in general, and the "old vets" of the 51st and 45th, living in this vicinity, in particular.

—Hurrah for the "vets" of the G. A. R?
